Appleton Teachers to Help With Registration For Draft

Offer Services and Sager Accepts; Schools Will Close

Appleton's 180 public school teachers will be used as registrars in the selective service registration Oct. 16 and the public school buildings will be used as registration places, according to E. E. Sager, city clerk.

The teachers, through the teachers' council of the Appleton Education association, offered their services and the board of education last night approved the offer and then voted to close the schools Oct. 16 so that they could be used for the work.

Municipal clerks of the county met yesterday with John E. Hantschel, director of county registration, at the courthouse and received initial instructions regarding the registration. A meeting of the clerks and other persons appointed as chief registrars will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the courthouse when they will be sworn in and receive materials for registration.

Solves Problem

The offer of the teachers solves registration personnel problems for City Clerk Sager, who under the original plan, would have had to ask for volunteers to handle the work and would have had to use polling places, which generally are believed inadequate.

Along the same line, the school board voted to grant leaves of absence to men on the school staff who may be called into military service for whatever period is required of them and they'll find their jobs waiting for them when they return to civilian life.

Sager, Ben J. Rohan, superintendent of schools, and Werner Witte, president of the education association, were scheduled to meet today to work out the details of registration of all males in Appleton between the ages of 21 and 35, the age bracket designated under the draft bill.

Tentative plans call for the use of the schools where possible and some of the polling places which are better fitted for this type of work. It is expected that ward lines will be used to divide the city into registration areas, perhaps two or three wards to each registration place.

District Attorney Raymond P. Dohr outlined duties of the municipal clerks at the meeting at the courthouse yesterday and County Clerk Hantschel distributed instructions. Town and village clerks will act as chief registrars, while in Appleton and Kaukauna the city clerks will name chief registrars.

The clerks were advised that all registrations must be made on Wednesday, Oct. 16. In case of doubt as to what procedure must be taken in certain instances, the chief registrars were told to contact the county clerk or district attorney.

And Sin In Motion

A thousand persons in a New York movie were so enthralled by a crime movie that they were unaware of a real crime in the dark lobby behind them, where two "live bandits" held up the theater manager and robbed him of the day's receipts. Of course, a cinema hold-up may not be as thrilling as the real thing, but when it's over the spectators can go home whole-skinned and quietly read The Post-Crescent classified wanted ads. Dykstra May be U. S. Draft Head

U. W. Head Says He Is 'Considering' Administrator's Job

Washington—(P)—Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin, said today that President Roosevelt had discussed the post of draft administrator with him but that he would have to do "some considering" before saying whether he would accept.

Dykstra made the statement after calling upon the president in company with Secretary Stimson.

Asked whether he would accept the draft directorship, the university head said he could not answer that now—that he would have to give the matter "some considering."

To a question as to whether the post had been offered to him, he said Mr. Roosevelt had discussed the matter with him.

Dykstra had been mentioned repeatedly here as a likely choice of Mr. Roosevelt for the position of director of selective service.

In that job he would have general supervision of the registration Oct. 16 of all men 21 through 35 and of the subsequent procedure by which thousands will be classified as eligible and be called up for a year of military service.

'Home Guards' Bill Approved

House Still Must Act on Amendments Adopted by Senate

Washington—(P)—The senate passed today legislation authorizing organization of "home guards" within states whose national guard units have been called into federal service. The measure now goes back to the house for action on senate amendments.

The senate action advanced further that chamber's arrangements for beginning a series of three-day recesses on Thursday, to last until Nov. 18. In the house, however, Democratic leaders abandoned, temporarily at least, plans to recess or adjourn. Speaker Rayburn saying they were actuated by "reasons sufficient to us."

The chief senate change in the home guards measure as previously passed by the house was a provision giving the secretary of war control over the proposed new military units. Senators said this would meet a complaint by organized labor that the house bill would have made possible formation of "vigilante" groups to suppress unions.

The legislation would amend a section of the 1916 national defense act which limited "state troops" to the national guard. With many guardsmen called into federal service for a year of peacetime training, governors of a number of states had asked congress to authorize substitute military units within the states.

With regard to recesses, Rayburn said the house leadership had made no decision.

Starts Court Action to Keep Communists Off State Ballot

Madison—(P)—Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman was ordered today to show cause in Dane county circuit court at 10 o'clock Saturday morning why he should not exclude the names of Communist candidates from the Wisconsin ballot in the November election.

The order was signed by Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann on petition of Assemblyman Arthur J. Balzer of West Allis. The petition, filed by Attorney Thomas B. Maroney, stated:

"Under the laws and decisions of our supreme court, the secretary of state has the duty to exclude from the coming November election the names of any persons who by their acts or by lack of qualifications fail to meet the requirements imposed on candidates by our constitution, legislature and decisions of our supreme court."

Communist candidates, Balzer claimed, are not eligible to seek public office because their political beliefs do not permit them to take the required oaths of office in which successful candidates swear to perform their legal duties and support the constitution.

School Budget Higher But Tax Levy Is Same

Although the 1940-41 budget for Appleton Public Schools is $7,000 higher than last year's, the board of education at Morgan school last night voted a tax levy of $358,000 for the third consecutive year. The 1939-40 budget was $454,682 while the estimate for this year's operating expenses is $461,618, the major increase being in teachers' salaries.

The estimated 1940-41 income of $467,978.99 is a boost of about $8,000 over the actual income of $479,712.57 in 1939-40, the increase being the result of an upward revision in tuition rates. Added to the operating budget is $12,000 for the construction of the Franklin school kindergarten and $15,000 for a building reserve fund, making a total of $488,618 in anticipated outgo, or about $700 more than the estimated income. This summer the city council agreed to assist with funds for construction of the Franklin school kindergarten and the board is asking $2,000 toward this project to cover the shortage and provide for any necessary additions to the new building.

Few Changes
There are few changes or variations from the budgets of previous years. The new budget provides for a few more teachers, a new power mower for the junior high schools and a tractor with auxiliary equipment for snow removal, grass cutting and lawn rolling.

Apart from the $9,180.59 increase from $310,061.74 to $319,122.33 in the salary appropriation, a normal expectancy, the two large budget increases are in the items of fuel and building improvements. The school fuel bins were empty at the close of the last school year and, since there was a sizeable deficit in the fuel appropriation for last year, it was necessary to raise the amount by $2,400 from $16,300 to $18,700, according to the budget report submitted by Ben J. Rohan, superintendent of schools.

Hike Improvements
Mr. Rohan also pointed out that while the high school was being constructed there were practically no major improvements in the other schools and as a result the money set aside for this work was raised from $8,100 to $11,550, a difference of $2,400. The amount earmarked for equipment was reduced $5,700 from $17,600 to $11,900.

State and county aids will be about the same this year. In the $338,000 tax levy is a $15,000 chunk to replenish school funds expended for high school equipment and WPA work and $5,000 for the special music appropriation. Tuition receipts are estimated at $45,000 as compared with $33,044.74 received last year.

The new law, signed last night, carries an excess profits tax of from 25 to 50 per cent and raises the corporation income tax from 20.9 to 24 per cent, the new rates being applicable on 1940 income and thereafter.

The White House announced the signing today.

As a means of activating the defense program, the law permits manufacturers and others to amortize, or to deduct from their taxable income, their entire cost of facilities completed for defense purposes after June 10, 1940. The deductions were made at the rate of 20 per cent a year for five years.

First Since War Years
It also suspends, during such period as the excess profits tax is levied, present 8 and 7 per cent limits on profits from warships and military aircraft.

The excess profits tax, designed to retard the creation of "war millionaires," is the first of its type enacted since the years immediately following 1917-18.

The nation's 400,000 smallest corporations will not have to pay it since the law exempts the first $5,000 of every corporation's profits. Small corporations also will not be affected by the income tax increase because congress in writing the measure left untouched the special lower rates on corporations with net income of less than $25,000.

Also set up by the law is a government insurance system for members of the present-day military and naval establishments, including craftmen and national guardsmen called to active duty, permitting them to obtain low-cost policies up to a face value of $10,000.

Youth Killed When Auto Crashes Through Rail

Madison—(P)—David Schultz, 21, drove an automobile through a guard rail on a bridge and plunged to his death about 2 o'clock this morning on old Highway 51, about a quarter of a mile north of Token creek. Coroner Wayne Fisher announced. The body was identified by the youth's father, Edwin Schultz, a farmer, who was called to assist in releasing the victim from the wreckage.

Batista Becomes Cuba's President

Havana—(P)—Fulgencio Batista, former chief of the Cuban army, becomes president of Cuba tomorrow, inaugurating not only a new administration but also a new constitution.

The former sergeant who seized control of a new revolutionary movement in September, 1933, and who remained the "power behind the throne" as chief of the army, was elected president in the general election June 14, in which his principal opponent was Dr. Ramon Grau San Martin.

Cuba's new cabinet, announced last night, includes four liberals, three nationalists, two democrats, one member of the national revolutionary party and four members having no political affiliation. Senator Carlos Saladrigas is the new premier.

Starlings to Face Barrage of Balloons

Milwaukee—(P)—A balloon barrage will be sent up round Milwaukee's courthouse in an effort to deter an aerial horde which has raided the building nightly for months.

Thirty-six balloons, bright pink in color and eight inches in diameter, will be tied to stakes thrust through the courthouse grillwork in an attempt to scare away an invading flock of starlings.

Marks of the bird's previous visit were plainly visible.

Excess Profits Tax Measure Gets Final O.K.

FDR's Signature Announced Today At White House

Washington—(P)—Broad tax legislation using an excess profits levy as a barrier against profiteering on military contracts and intended at the same time to encourage defense enterprises has been signed into law by President Roosevelt.

The new law, signed last night, carries an excess profits tax of from 25 to 50 per cent and raises the corporation income tax from 20.9 to 24 per cent, the new rates being applicable on 1940 income and thereafter.

The White House announced the signing today.

As a means of activating the defense program, the law permits manufacturers and others to amortize, or to deduct from their taxable income, their entire cost of facilities completed for defense purposes after June 10, 1940. The deductions were made at the rate of 20 per cent a year for five years.

Fire Causes $5,000 Loss

Man Escapes Injury As Explosion Occurs In Clintonville Shop

Clintonville—An explosion in the repair room of the Clintonville Electric shop, 122 S. Main street, resulted in fire damage estimated at about $5,000 to the William Melzer building and its contents yesterday afternoon. Fred Chappel, who started the store with Harold Darnell about a year ago, had been cleaning motors with gasoline and it was believed fumes ignited when he lit a blow torch. Chappel escaped serious injury.

Clintonville firemen were called about 3:30 and they battled the flames for about 3 hours. The young men had $300 in insurance and their loss was estimated at more than $1,000, the entire stock of radios, household appliances and repair equipment being destroyed.

Smoke and water damage resulted in the Melzer monument works which was located in the adjacent store.

Household furnishings and personal effects of the Roy Melzer family, occupants of a second floor apartment were ruined by smoke and water. Their loss of about $800 is not covered by insurance because they moved recently and hadn't had their policy changed. Damage of about $3,000 to the building is covered by insurance.

Milk Pool Bankruptcy Hearing Set for Nov. 6

Milwaukee—(P)—Federal Judge F. Ryan Duffy has set Nov. 6 for a hearing on the involuntary petition in bankruptcy brought against the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool.

Creditors filed the petition. In an answer, Harry Jack, pool president, alleged that the cooperative is not amenable to the bankruptcy laws because it is not a "monied corporation as covered by the federal laws."

Il Duce's Paper Offers U. S. British Areas if America Stays Out of War

Rome—(P)—Premier Mussolini's newspaper Il Popolo d'Italia said today that "new heavy blows" against Britain with the intervention of fresh forces were imminent and offered British territory in the western hemisphere to the United States if she remained out of the war.

The newspaper's military commentator, Mario Appellus, said the United States must choose among three decisions:

1. "To remain neutral until the destruction of the British empire has been effected and to take its place among its natural heirs" with Canada, Newfoundland, the Bahamas, Bermuda and Jamaica as its "dependencies."

2. To continue to aid England without intervening in the war and find herself in an "inferior diplomatic condition" when the British empire is split up at a peace conference, as well as in future trade agreements.

3. To enter the war "knowing she is not militarily ready and to meet all the consequences of defeat."

Also Australian
The final course, Appellus said, would be "suicide."

If the United States remains neutral, the commentator went on, she might also get Australia and New Zealand, while British Honduras would go to Guatemala, British Guiana to Brazil and the Falkland Islands to Argentina.

"New heavy blows are imminent which will aggravate the already desperate situation of the British empire and further reduce its power of resistance," Appellus asserted.

"Without North American aid, England already would have collapsed."

Hospital Hit in Heavy Raid on British Capital

Air-Raid Shelter Smashed as Germans Speed Up Attacks

Great Britain rushed the removal of all civilians from Gibraltar today after the guns of the massive rock fortress had fired out into the Mediterranean for several hours, reportedly sinking a French ship which refused orders to halt.

Aged residents and children of the town began streaming down to the docks to board a steamer, leaving "the rock's" powerful garrison unhampered to cope with a threatened axis assault.

London—(P)—German raiders hidden in the clouds attacked London in mid-morning today after overnight bombings in which big explosives smashed an air-raid shelter which housed 180 persons and three wings of a hospital housing 108.

Eight were killed in the shelter and an undisclosed number of others were injured.

The bombed hospital was described as possibly the hardest-hit building in London, where the raiding up to midnight was reported to be the most severe the city has undergone.

Three wings, two housing men patients and one housing women, were crumpled. Most of the patients were 80 years old or over—almost all of them permanent invalid cases.

As rescue crews dug for victims in the debris it was feared that not a single patient escaped either death or injury. How many were dead could not be determined because many had not been accounted for long after dawn.

East Coast Raided
The first daylight alarm was sounded some time after sounds of distant firing, apparently high above the clouds, were heard in London.

Raiders also were reported over the east coast. One town was bombed and machine-gunned.

In early afternoon eight German planes were seen over the Thames.

Ickes Will Not Tour Northwest

Washington—(P)—Secretary Ickes said today that a miscalculation on radio time plus a new show of Roosevelt strength in political polls caused him to cancel his proposed stumping tour of the Pacific northwest.

While enroute last Saturday night he said, he learned that his major address at Portland, in which he intended to challenge Wendell L. Willkie's stand on public power, could not be broadcast.

Churchill Chosen Head of His Party

London—(P)—Prime Minister Churchill today was elected unanimously leader of the conservative party, succeeding Neville Chamberlain.

His election as head of his party as well as of the government had been considered certain since Chamberlain last week stepped out of the cabinet and relinquished his party post.

Northwestern U Gets Gifts of $635,000

Chicago—(P)—Northwestern university announced today that gifts totaling $635,000 had been received from the estate of Dr. John S. Appleman, Chicago physician, who died Sept. 11.

Of the total, $235,000 represents three trust funds established several years ago and now made available to the university by his death. The balance represents a bequest in his will.

A half-million dollars of the fund may be used in any department of the university, but the remaining $135,000 is restricted to use of the medical school clinics.

15-Story Building Is Shaken by Explosion

Philadelphia—(P)—An explosion of surplus oil in a feed line to a basement water heater shook the 15-story building formerly occupied by the Guarantee Trust company at Broad and Walnut streets today, sending columns of smoke billowing around the structure.

There were no injuries, and no fire.

Child Drowns in Lake After Fall From Dock

Rhineland—(P)—James J. Hale, 34 years old, drowned in Lake Laurie near here yesterday when he fell from a dock at the summer home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Fischer, Milwaukee. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Hale, Milwaukee.

Germans Declare Convoy Bombed By Reich Planes

Reveal Surface Raids Made by Nazis in 'Overseas Waters'

Berlin—(P)—Dive-bombing hits on a convoy of troop transports, apparently carrying thousands of men from somewhere in the British empire to the defense of Britain, were reported today by the German high command along with a fresh disclosure of surface raiding "in overseas waters."

The daily communiqué said that a fighting plane attacked "a strongly-armed convoy with five large, fully-occupied troop transports, in a daringly-deep dive and made several hits on a ship of about 20,000 tons." The position of the convoy was given as northwest of Ireland and about 125 miles from the Scottish coast.

(This would be on a route traveled by Canadian troops.)

The bomb hits were said to have caused the transport to stop and "lay motionless."

The high command added another scant paragraph to the little-known story of German surface-raiders with the statement that "an auxiliary cruiser reports sinking of 32,000 tons of enemy merchant ship in overseas waters as a result of its merchant war activities up to the present time."

Extensive Raiding
(Urgent reports indicate that German surface-raiding, in the world war tradition of the cruiser Emden, has reached into both the Indian ocean and close to South America, in the south Atlantic. The Emden was destroyed Nov. 9, 1914, by the Australian cruiser Sydney, in a running battle off the Cocos islands in the Indian ocean.)

Another German plane, on reconnaissance, attacked a British merchant ship off the Scottish coast, it was said, blasted her into flames with "several bombs" and left her motionless and "in a sinking condition."

The high command's picture of the unrelenting air siege of Britain was set off from the now customary reports by an announcement that "full hits" had destroyed seven R. A. F. bombers while dive-bombers and other machine-gunning planes wrecked "numerous" British planes around.

Ten to twenty fold revenge was taken on the London area last night by German bombers for the British Monday night attack on Berlin, informed sources declared.

Says Germany's War With Britain Won't Avert Attack on U. S.

Madison—(P)—Addressing the fourth Wisconsin Conference on the Cause and Cure of War, Prof. John D. Hicks, chairman of the University of Wisconsin history department, said today it was wrong to assume that a victorious Germany, tired from a long war with Great Britain, would be too weak to attack the United States.

"After a long and grueling war a nation is strongest," he said. "It was true in the United States in 1865 and in 1918. War lives on war and breeds war."

He also said it would be wrong to believe that Russia would eventually attack Germany.

"Josef Stalin is a compulsory ally of Hitler and from him we can expect no help," Prof. Hicks declared. "The sooner we believe this the better off we'll be."

"The only way we can defend American democracy," he added, "is by helping Great Britain, the one great ally we have."

About 350 persons attended the one-day conference.

Admiral Says Navy Ready for Crisis in Orient

Philadelphia—(P)—The basic issue confronting Americans today, says Rear Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, retired, "is whether this nation is prepared to live indefinitely as an armed camp and whether our form of government can survive the pressure" of events abroad.

"The war in Europe and the war in Asia," he said, "are phases of the same war. If we are going to help the remaining free nations we must be prepared for the alternative of war."

The admiral, who retired last year as commander of the Asiatic fleet, spoke last night at a meeting sponsored by the Philadelphia Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Naval Reserve Officers' association.

"Washington is not going headed into war," he declared. "It is trying hard to avoid war...."

"But the new triple alliance of Germany, Italy and Japan is aimed directly at us. It is intended to scare us from shifting the balance in either Europe or Asia."

The United States navy now is "equal to anything in the Pacific," he continued, "and the British can be depended on to take care of the Atlantic."

Britain's announced intention of re-opening the Burma road may provoke Japan to "drastic action," Yarnell warned, resulting in a crisis involving the United States.

But, he said, "we may be better prepared for a showdown with Japan now, while she is bogged down in China than we will be six years from now" when the two-ocean navy is completed.

Threaten Bombing

Tokio—(P)—Japan will close the Burma road with bombs if Britain persists in her determination to reopen this "backdoor" route linking China with vital sources of war materials, the Tokyo press intimated today.

Declaring the recent acquisition of airplane bases in French Indo-China has given Japan a tremendous strategic advantage against China, newspapers asserted the Japanese now are ready for direct action.

Further words are unnecessary, the prominent paper Nichi Nichi said, because Japan already has explained to third powers her determination to eliminate the supply route of Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

"Japan need no longer conduct any diplomatic negotiations with Britain," said this commentary. "The effect of stationing Japanese forces in Indo-China should now be displayed."

Yomiuri commented in the same vein.

The Burma road, built after Japan had succeeded in seizing most of China's seaboard, follows a tortuous 2,000-mile route from Chungking, provisional Chinese capital, to Rangoon.

Democracy Is 'No Bequest'

America Must Work For It, Professor Says at Convocation

American democracy is "on trial here and now in America and not in Germany, China, or Japan," Professor Robert Worth Frank of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of Chicago said in a convocation address before Lawrence students Monday at Memorial chapel.

"Can our citizens achieve the intelligence and social-mindedness to attain democracy?" he asked. "They must or we cannot keep our democracy, for it requires discipline." Americans cannot guarantee democracy merely by wishing for it, he told the students. "It is not a bequest, but must be earned through the most strenuous self-discipline and by traveling a hard road."

The professor of theology declared that "luxury destroys every civilization and every class which practices it, and luxury is obtained through the cupidity and avarice and the acquisitive appetites of men."

He said further: "If one desires anything good of life, he must do it through self-discipline. Take mental health, as an example, which so few of us achieve. It is ever more difficult to attain, as our world becomes more complex. Discipline and con-

Landscape Artist to Speak at 2 Meetings In County Thursday

Lawrence Holmes, Madison, of the state college of agriculture, will speak on landscape gardening at two meetings in Outagamie county Thursday. The first will be held at 1:30 in the afternoon in the Black Creek Community hall and the second at 8 o'clock in the evening at the Appleton Vocational school.

He will discuss general points in beautifying the home grounds such as lawn preparation, selection of shrubbery and care, planting of trees for background and the importance of working by plan. Colored slides will be shown.

On Friday Holmes will visit homes of those who wish to start a plan for beautifying the farmstead. A series of meetings on the subject will be held during the winter.

Hospital Hit in Heavy Raid on British Capital

estuary, apparently headed for London. They were met by heavy anti-aircraft fire and turned back when British fighter planes rose to challenge them.

After the night attack glass-strewn streets, heaps of rubble that had been homes and workshops and lengthening casualty lists were reported from 102 sections of England. Thirty-eight of the areas of new bomb-wrought devastation were in London, which again bore the fullest force of the bombings that started England's third month of severe air siege.

Next to London, the hardest-hit area was the latter triangle down the Thames to the barbed-wire guarded southeast coast.

Smash Nazi Bases
Across the choppy strait that is the no man's land between beleaguered Britain and the nearest main camp the Royal Air Force kept steadily through the early-morning hours at its task of smashing German-held coastal bases and barge fleets with the aim of keeping invasion only a threat.

Tons of high explosives and hundreds of incendiary bombs were dropped last night on the vital German seaport of Bremen, the air ministry reported today.

R.A.F. heavy bombers, the ministry said, ranged over Bremen and the naval base at Wilhelmshaven, as well as inland German cities and towns and the already badly-battered English channel "invasion bases."

The attack on Bremen alone lasted more than half an hour, the ministry declared. The air was filled with debris from explosions and fires broke out in the area.

Oil refineries at Gelsenkirchen, in the industrial Ruhr valley, the Krupp munition plant at Essen, a metal works at Hanau, a Kessel power station and the Fokker aircraft factory at Amsterdam were raided.

In all, the overnight alarm in London did not last as long as the night before which was the longest of the war.

Record Attack
Until midnight, however, observers in London said, the attack surpassed any the city had undergone previously in the early night. Raiders crossing the coast in groups of 30 fanned out over the Thames, then dived through the London anti-aircraft barrage one at a time.

Much of the time a dozen or more bombers were over the city simultaneously. Sometimes bombs screamed down four or five a minute. "Molotov breadbaskets" of incendiary bombs dumped in the suburbs lighted the way for the attack.

After midnight fewer and fewer planes were heard over central London, the bombings eased off, and the city was quiet before dawn.

A government communique said damage was done to "a number of houses and industrial premises" in London, and added:

"Full reports of casualties are not yet available. It is feared that some may have been caused in one building in London which was struck by a high explosive bomb and partially demolished, but the indications are that casualties generally have not been heavy."

Casualties elsewhere in England were reported, but their number was unestimated.

Fires were started in London and its suburbs, where hundreds of bombs were said to have fallen in the first hours of the attack. A child was killed and several other persons were injured when a single bomb wrecked a row of homes. A group of workers' apartment houses in another borough was hit.

Shop fronts were damaged by a bomb which fell in a London street and a number of customers in a bar were injured.

Double Funeral for Father, Daughter to Be Held at Waupaca

Waupaca — John E. Smith, 64, town of Farmington, who collapsed following the death of his daughter, Miss Jeannette Smith, died at 8:15 this morning at his home while preparing to attend rites for his daughter.

Double funeral services for Mr. Smith and his daughter will be conducted at 10 o'clock Thursday morning at Holly Funeral home, Waupaca, by the Rev. F. A. Riessler. Both bodies will be buried in the Smith family cemetery.

Miss Smith succumbed at Chicago Sunday. Her father also was in Chicago and it was thought he would not be able to make the trip to Waupaca. He accompanied the body to Waupaca, however, arriving here yesterday afternoon, and appeared to be in better health.

Mr. Smith was born in the town of Farmington and attended Waupaca public schools. He was a photographer, operating studios at Waupaca, Stevens Point and Sheboygan before retiring several years ago. He also was a former member of the Waupaca city band.

Surviving are the widow; three daughters and two brothers.

Mission Work Big Problem For Lutherans

War-Torn Nations No Longer Able to Aid Financially

Omaha —(P)—War-torn Europe posed the problem today of supporting foreign missions before the opening sessions of the 12th biennial United Lutheran church of America convention.

The task of assuming the financial burden of mission work in ten foreign lands, created by withdrawal of support and personnel by churches and missionary societies in war-torn nations, appeared to overshadow such controversial matters as memorials asking church support of conscientious objectors.

Acceptance of foreign mission support will be asked by the president, the Rev. Frederick H. Knobel of New York.

The United Lutheran church is expected to vote Friday on the long-sought establishment of the cooperative federation with the American Lutheran church. The latter group is slated to ballot in Detroit on the matter next week.

Negotiations culminating in the favorable report of a commission recommending merging of the two Lutheran groups for work in education, missions and social welfare have been most intensive the last six years.

Both bodies appointed commissions to confer on barriers to full fellowship.

Most points narrowed down to the exact wording of a statement relative to the doctrine of God's word and the Bible, to exchange of pulpits, courtesies with clergymen of other communions and to membership in social organizations apart from the church whose principles are not considered "Christian in character."

The commissions have approved statements on these three points. It remains for the rank and file of each group to decide whether they are a satisfactory basis upon which to enter into fuller fellowship and action.

Affirmation is expected here.

Teachers to Aid In Registration

Oct. 16 as conscription registration day for males between the ages of 21 and 35 inclusive.

Hell's proclamation, ordered the official polling places of the state open from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. on that date and stated that "the election officials of the state and sub-divisions must have adequate registrars available to perform the registration in an efficient manner."

Hell also asked employers to cooperate "to facilitate registration of employees" and urged "that the schools remain in session and that the teachers avail themselves of this opportunity to provide the students with a knowledge of this registration day and its patriotic purposes, which I have elected to designate as 'Liberty Appreciation Day.'"

"Wisconsin has always been in the forefront in times of stress when the nation had need to call upon it for its just and equitable measure of cooperation and assistance," the governor said.

"I am confident this state will accept this opportunity not only to maintain but to enhance its reputation. At the same time we offer the prayer that our preparations for defense will not be forced by circumstances to culminate in actual conflict."

soon in British Burma, which has a common frontier with Indo-China. Japan's acquisition of Indo-China bases therefore has shortened by some 350 or 400 miles the distance which her bombers would be compelled to fly in an attempt to cut the road.

Some sections of the Tokio press expressed belief the scheduled reopening of the Burma road Oct. 17 was only the prelude to more extensive British-United States assistance to China in the form of loans. The road was closed July 17 by an agreement effective for three months.

Surprised by U. S. Move
Yachichiro Suma, foreign office spokesman, expressed surprise at the action of the United States in advising its nationals in Japan to return home as soon as possible.

"We can't understand the necessity of it," he said. Japan has no intention of advising her citizens to quit the United States, he added.

(In Shanghai the stock market fell sharply in reaction to news of the United States' action.)

Yomiuri, commenting on Japanese-United States relations, expressed belief they were "more likely to grow worse" in view of the Burma road reopening, which was taken here as a new instance of British-American cooperation in applying pressure on Japan.

The paper expressed doubt, however, that the United States "is ready to stake her national fortunes for the sake of China."

Up to Washington

London —(P)—Soviet circles in the British capital, commenting on the Far Eastern situation, said today Russia would welcome improved relations with the United States, but added that America should take the steps toward improving them.

One source said the way also was open for better British-Russian relations if the British would seek them sincerely.

He declared it was too early to assess diplomatic exchanges between Russians and Americans in Moscow and Washington, but added:

"There is no reason why there should not be friendship between our countries — friendship and trade."

Russia, he said, has no desire to "pull anybody's chestnuts out of the fire," and wants war with no one.

Russia's attitude toward the Far East is the same as that towards Europe: "One of watchful neutrality and safeguarding our own interests," this source said.

Russians, he said, feel they are in a better bargaining position than any of the belligerents or near-belligerents and therefore are entitled to the most polite treatment by any nation seeking their friendship.

A new Russian military attache arrived today by way of Japan and the United States.

admitted to army ranks under conscription, even though they are barred "by the express policy" of congress from jobs vacated by drafted men.

Selective service headquarters and the war department officials today confirmed that interpretation of the compulsory service law. They cited the draft regulation which states:

"There shall be no discrimination for or against any person because of his race, creed, or color, or because of his membership or activity in any labor, political, religious, or other organization."

Colonel William H. Draper, Jr., of the president's advisory committee on the draft interpreted that rule to mean that there could be no bar against members of such organizations as the Communist party and bund.

REGISTRATION CARD D. S. S. FORM 1

SAMPLE REGISTRATION CARD—Shown above is a sample of the cards that young men from 21 to 35 years of age, inclusive, will fill out Oct. 16 preparatory to the conscription program. It has been suggested that young men of registration age fill out this sample card and bring it with them Oct. 16, thus saving time.

Registration Card to Ask Only 11 Questions of Men

Young men registering under the conscription program October 16 will be asked for 11 basic facts about themselves.

Any registrant who is not near his home on October 16 may register at the nearest polling place wherever he happens to be, in Wisconsin or elsewhere. His registration card will be sent back to the vicinity of his home through the state selective service headquarters.

The registration card carries the following facts about the man: name, address, telephone number, age, place of birth, citizenship, name of person "most likely to know whereabouts," relationship of that person and his address, name of employer and address.

Here are tips on how some of these questions should be answered: Give the address where you actually live, not your business address. If you do not live at a particular address, then give the address where mail will reach you quickly.

Give your age in years as of your last birthday. Example: If you are 25 years, 11 months old, just say 25 years.

Give the name of the person most likely to know your whereabouts at all times. If you are living with your wife, parents, or other close relatives, give the name of the family member who can locate you easiest and quickest. If you are not living with your family, give the name of someone who can locate you easily.

Use your company's name, not your foreman's, in answering the question on employer. If you are in business for yourself, answer "self." If you are working on a WPA project, answer "WPA project."

Two Freight Trains Collide at Crossing

Vincennes, Ind.—(P)—A Baltimore and Ohio freight locomotive rammed a Chicago and Eastern Illinois freight car last night at the intersection of the two railroads, tying up traffic on both lines for several hours.

Rex Dudley, A. B. and O. Telegrapher, saw the impending collision in time to run out of his booth at the intersection just before the freight car toppled over and demolished it.

Wreck crews were dispatched from the B. and O. yards at Washington, Ind., to remove the wreckage.

Episcopal Clergy Plan War Work

Kansas City —(P)—The national council of the Protestant Episcopal church Tuesday discussed plans for religious work among army conscripts and means of safeguarding pastors of clergymen called to training camps.

The Rev. Alden Drew Kelley of New York submitted the report on conscription plans at a pre-convention meeting of the council, policy-making body of the church. The triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal church in America will start tomorrow and continue through Oct. 23.

"A number of our clergy who are members of the national guard or other reserve organizations may be called for camp duties," Kelley said. "It is necessary for the welfare of these ministers and their families that provisions be made for them."

The report suggested appointment of a commission to keep in touch with clergymen called to training camps and work out a placement program after the training is completed.

Amateur Radio Is Topic at Conservation Club Meeting

Waupaca — Amateur radio was discussed at the regular meeting of the local Conservation club Monday evening. Nearly 100 members were present. Ervin Rasmussen, amateur broadcaster from Oshkosh, was the speaker. Plans were to set up an amateur set in the clubhouse for demonstration, but the government has forbidden the use of such sets anywhere except in the home, this ruling going into effect three months ago. Another rule that is being rigidly enforced at this time, is prohibiting communication with foreign countries. The men learned that if one such country should attempt to communicate with an amateur here, the station must be changed and no signals answered. "Listening stations" see that all rules made by the federal communication commission are enforced.

Mr. Rasmussen said amateur radio is represented by 65,000 persons, 45,000 of them in the United States. Five are pursuing the hobby in this city—Paul Niles, Lloyd Lear, Dr. Arthur Chandler, Allan Curtis and Van Boyce.

Since 1913 amateur radio has been the principal and in many cases the only, means of outside communication in nearly 200 storm and flood emergencies in this country. Red Cross centers in various parts of the country are furnished with lists of amateur stations in the vicinity as a regular part of their emergency measures program.

Refreshments were served by Elmore Kurkowski and Harold Harrington.

Consider Plight of Foreign Missions

Chicago —(P)—Pastors of the Illinois conference of Lutheran churches from Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Indiana and Wisconsin assembled Tuesday to discuss the part to play in helping foreign missions formerly supported by Lutherans of Denmark, Finland, Norway and Germany which have become "orphans" because of the European war.

The National Lutheran conference approved a drive for $500,000 to support these missions during October and November, and the Illinois conference is cooperating in this movement.

Job Insurance Outlay Down in September

Madison —(P)—Unemployment compensation payments in Wisconsin during September totaled $320,800, or $163,991 less than in August, the industrial commission announced Tuesday.

There were 8,300 persons currently applying for total benefits at the close of September, the commission said. This compares to 12,200 a month ago and 10,600 a year ago.

Benefit payments total over $3,852,000 for the year, and for the period since August, 1936, when benefits started, more than $19,289,000, the commission said.

Johnson Says It's Folly to Draw Conclusions From Polls

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON
Washington, D. C.—This is another piece about these "dopester" polls that tell you all about elections before they happen. I don't believe in them. Their accuracy depends too much on their timing, the way they are conducted and the wording of the questions. They can have great effect to sway voters. The conduct of them is a private enterprise for profit. There is no assurance of bi-partisan or neutral control of their conduct. As campaigns reach climaxes there are few Americans whose sympathies are not aroused. It is human nature for the wish to be father to both conviction and conduct—among poorly paid enumerators also.

These polls do not register secret ballot. They do not even register a sample "yes" or "no." They are frequently built up on a series of more or less technical questions, sometimes so framed as to persuade a particular answer which the enumerator interprets. In view of their great influence, it seems to me that all polls require both investigation and regulation in the public interest. They certainly do not deserve to be swallowed whole.

I don't dispute their possible value (1) as some indication of shifts and trends in public thinking, and (2) as an even better indication when actual choice closely approaches, and the simple question is "Do you favor X or Y?"

But the folly of making conclusions on these polls is apparent. Most people don't have time to study them. A flat statement such as Dr. Gallup recently made that his study showed 499 electoral votes for Roosevelt with 42 states and 32 votes for Wilkie with 6 states, sounds almost as impressive as the 1936 election returns when Mr. Roosevelt carried 46 states.

But, however inaccurate, except as to trend, an examination of this and other polls in detail shows a surprising reversal of popular opinion. In 1936, Mr. Roosevelt carried 27.4 million voters to Mr. Landon's 16.6 millions—almost 66 per cent or a majority of 10.8 millions. The poll of American Forecasts Inc.—a competitor of Dr. Gallup's—predicts 23.7 millions for Mr. Roosevelt and 21.2 millions for Mr. Wilkie—a 53 per cent majority. "Oh what a falling off was cent majority or only a 2.5 million there."

Both poll conductors insist on a 3 per cent to 4 per cent margin of error as experienced in their own performances. Both also report very large "undecided" groups and Dr. Gallup says "Supplementary surveys show that as many as 27 per cent of Mr. Roosevelt's current supporters are not definitely sure that they will vote for him." What the hell! Consider the states shown on the Gallup poll with less than a 4 per cent majority (Dr. Gallup's claimed margin of error) for Mr. Roosevelt—all of which are shown on the Dunn survey as safely for Wilkie. Consider also that the American Opinion Forecast Inc. poll is 2 per cent less favorable to Mr. Roosevelt than Dr. Gallup's. Consider both of these things and Mr. Roosevelt is licked right now.

I come to no such conclusions. I don't trust these polls either way. This is going to be a very close election.

Would Curb Broadcasting Of Communist Candidates

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J.—Fresh evidence of public feeling against the activities of Communists in the United States is revealed in a nationwide survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

This survey finds that a large majority of voters are against allowing Communist Party candidates the same amount of time on the radio as the candidates of other parties. In fact, the majority oppose giving Communist candidates any time at all over the air on the grounds that the Communist Party is not a truly "American" party and is trying to "undermine our government."

This anti-Communist feeling, which has undoubtedly been intensified by the war in Europe and by the Russo-German pact of a year ago, is indicated in the results of the following poll questions put to a national cross-section of the voting public. Two sets of questions were asked, one set dealing with "free" time on the radio, and the other omitting any specification of whether the time was granted free or paid for by the party.

"Should Communist Party candidates be allowed the same amount of time on the radio as the Democratic and Republican candidates?"

Yes 29%
No 71%

One voter in ten (10%) was undecided.

"Do you think Communist Party candidates should be allowed any time on the radio?"

Yes 37%
No 63%

Approximately one voter in eight (13%) expressed no opinion.

The second set of questions set to a separate but exactly comparable cross-section of voters, follows:

"Should Communist Party candidates be allowed the same amount of free time on the radio as the Democratic and Republican candidates?"

Yes 25%
No 75%

Approximately one voter in nine (11%) had no opinion.

"Do you think Communist Party candidates should be allowed any free time on the radio?"

Yes 31%
No 69%

On this question the undecided vote was 15 per cent.

broadcasts by Communist candidates is that Communist Party principles are against the Democratic form of government. "The Communist Party in this country is a tool of Russia," said a New York business man. "Why should we allow foreign agents to undermine our government?"

Past studies by the Institute clearly show that the public's attitude toward the Communist Party in this country is conditioned by its belief that it is far from being an American party. A poll reported last November showed that only nine per cent of voters believe the policies of the party are decided entirely by American Communists, while 52 per cent believe the policies are controlled directly or indirectly by Russia, and 39 per cent are undecided on this point.

Napoleons on the Brenner Pass

Axis cables assured us of the "cordial reunion" between Hitler and Mussolini as they met amid the howling winds of the Brenner Pass.

No doubt affairs with the Axis are still upon a cordial plane. The war is young and there has been enough of triumph to dull the judgment to the future's possibilities.

But this meeting at the Brenner Pass was not as gay or happy as the one some months ago when the French had curled up and the English were expected to be reasonable. For England has survived. And the greatest and most destructive war machine of all history has come to a puzzling halt as it surveys a job that cannot be handled, that is, the taking of England.

The Brenner Pass has witnessed the arrival of many people whose eyes were brightened as the summit was mounted and it has also observed an endless throng of windswept figures driven by mercurial influences whither they knew not.

The parallel between this war and Napoleon's adventures becomes more impressive every day. Napoleon, too, drove into the Mediterranean. In fact he took everything including Egypt. After every prize he returned to the English channel and looked with anger and hatred across to the cliffs of Dover. The more he surveyed the task of conquering Albion the more he exhausted his energies elsewhere. Prussia and Holland, Bavaria and Austria, Italy and Russia, and even Switzerland and Spain were attacked and either subdued or submitted to tribute to his pride and vanity.

But continental Europe was not enough. And the deep-eyed Napoleon, resourceful as the present German general staff, returned time and again to his ports upon the English channel and to the problem of transporting an army to English soil, supplying and providing it, too, with a means of escape if the tragic moment should arrive when retreat must be sounded.

Perhaps the German general staff will outshine Napoleon, perhaps the meeting at the Brenner Pass may evolve a more hazardous and daring attack than the Little Corporal and his field marshals could figure out to bring England to her knees.

And perhaps the figures that met on the Brenner Pass may eventually take their places with those others that have been seen there on countless occasions when the merciless ice blasts from the Alps have hurled them along the rough, steep paths and rent their clothes in shreds.

Governor Horner's Case

Death has just ended the career of Governor Horner of Illinois. His record in public office was notable because in a day of pettifoggers and imposters he was genuine and sincere. He fought the Kelly-Nash gang tooth and nail and wiped out the earth with it. And then the paralyzing hand of time struck out of his system right on the eve of victory the robust energy without which no man can carry on in an important position.

For two years Mr. Horner has been an invalid. His heart and circulatory system could not stand the shocks and buffets of controversy that is inherent in public life. But those who were interested in the appearance of things had his ear, believed they could influence his acts and decisions as well as benefit by the association, and they moved in and took charge of the cripple.

Instances of this sort are rare but they are impregnated with a highly dangerous element to the public. Actually the people of Illinois resented the efforts of the Lieutenant-Governor to take over the duties of the office as a slap at Mr. Horner, the man they admired. But they did not appreciate that the Kelly-Nash gang, with Horner down, could spread its evil influence even beyond the confines of the great city held in its soiled and sordid grasp.

Mr. Horner's infirmity, not unlike that of President Wilson during the last year of his term, presents a problem in government which should be met by requiring a decision by a non-partisan and scientific body instead of making it appear that the next in line of succession is letting his ambition rule when, in the public interest, he should succeed to his chief.

WPA Boodlers at Kenosha

The poet who wrote of Right forever on the scaffold and Wrong forever on the throne was making his charge too gross for the human esophagus to swallow. But the ease with which great grafters ride home in their limousines while little chislers are chucked into the dungeon is still a reproach upon the ways of justice.

Why should the Kenosha county board lift pious eyes at alleged irregularities and call upon the Kenosha district attorney to vindicate the law against those who have diverted WPA materials to private jobs and directed WPA labor to complete private enterprises when the secretary of the Democratic National Committee walks into the biggest bank in Atlanta with a million dollars of swag obtained through the influence of his political pull while everybody bends at the waist to pay him homage?

Away up there on Olympus the gods who understand must look upon these human contortions as the most ludicrous of all the vagaries to which flesh is heir.

Here we have a treasury without any doors in it. Hundreds of thousands of needless employees are hired to sing the praises of those who blew the doors off. And great mobs of Chicago, Kansas City, Jersey City, almost any big city, are permitted to chisel, extort, cheat and conspire so long as they are clever enough to obtain the indispensable political protection at so much laid down on the barrelhead.

Aren't we rather pitiful creatures to rise up in wrath at some fellow down in Kenosha who tried to get something for himself in this day of common corruption? Aren't we somewhat mean and contemptible to have our public prosecutor pounding the table, face colored with wrath, at some threadbare, shift-eyed racketeer in the southeast corner of Wisconsin while the big flock of fat boys with silk underwear purr past on the highway led by siren-screaming motor cops looking for safe investments into which to pour their bags of gold?

Some believe we make the gods weep. We think they must roar.

"You Can't Go Home Again"

Benjamin Franklin once wrote of a man who had every opportunity in the world but gaily tossed them aside for fun on the primrose path until he suddenly realized that he was old, worn, broken and his life about to end. The rush of remorse that came upon him when he found he could not return and pick up his life to make something out of it was likely to clutch the reader's heart and make it shrink in sympathy. But Old Ben was a kindly soul and he had the careless man awake. It had all been a dream. He was still young, his hair was untouched by the eternal snows, his body supple, his spirit and ambition high.

It was a good story for a young man to read so that he might get away from that primrose path before it was too late. Always through life there is the purpose of reform, little reform or big reform, depending upon the career involved and the length of the wanderings.

Thomas Wolfe, who is dead before his time, wrote with a lot of sound and fury, thunder and lightning, and sometimes heavily and with squeamishness, but his elucidation of that thought in every man's mind to return over old paths will be a shock to many even if they cannot dispute its truth. He wrote:

"The phrase, you can't go home again, had many applications for him. You can't go back home to your family, back home to your childhood, back home to romantic love, back home to a young man's dreams of glory and fame, back home to exile, to escape to Europe and some foreign land, back home to lyricism, to singing just for singing's sake, back home to aestheticism, to one's youthful idea of the artist and the all sufficiency of 'art' and 'beauty' and 'love,' back home to the ivory tower, back home to places in the country, to the cottage in Bermuda, away from all the strife and conflict of the world, back home to the father you have lost and have been looking for, back home to someone who can help you, save you, ease the burden for you, back home to the old forms and systems of things which once seemed everlasting but which are changing all the time—back home to the escapes of time and memory."

It is all too bad about this business, too bad to even know the truth about it, too bad to be confronted by the fact that the old swimming hole and the old school house, the old calf paths and the old teeter-totter, have about them none of the dreams or the romance that every person, however old he gets, fatuously believes, until he runs onto a book like that of Mr. Wolfe's which forces him to admit the contrary.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

LITTLE GOALS

She sets herself a little goal
As every day begins,
A task to satisfy her soul;
A prize she always wins.
The triumphs of her quiet life
Give her a thrill of pride,
Though she has never joined the strife
Of larger worlds outside.
Within the circle of her charm
The finest graces flower,
The curve of her maternal arm
Means an untroubled hour.
She keeps her heart within four walls,
Serene in her own place,
And tranquil is the light that falls
Upon her gentle face.
There may be brilliant lives, that seem
To mirror every art,
But none more lovely than her dream
And her contented heart.

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington—The Dies investigating committee now has documentary evidence of Nazi fifth column operations in the U. S. so explosive that its publication might lead to a complete rupture of diplomatic relations with Germany.

Because of this likelihood of international complications the committee has been nervously sitting on the load of dynamite, uncertain what to do. It has consulted the state department, which is just as jittery itself.

In fact, even more so. The department foresees the inevitable necessity of demanding the recall of a number of German diplomatic representatives, with certain retaliation by Berlin by the ousting of U. S. officials. In the present delicate state of U. S.-Axis relations, the department doesn't want to run that risk.

So on its urgent advice, the committee is sitting tight and continuing its secret probe of the subversive activities. The documentary evidence in the possession of the committee is staggering. It definitely establishes:

1. That the Nazi government is directly supervising and financing a nationwide fifth column campaign to oppose and obstruct the defense program, the U. S. government's foreign policy and aid to Great Britain.

2. That this activity is being carried on through German consulates and German-controlled papers, plus propaganda agencies of various kinds.

3. That Nazi consuls get detailed instructions from Berlin through regular short-wave broadcasts in code.

COLUMN FUEHRER

Suspected master mind of the Nazi fifth column is Dr. Manfred Zapp, head of the Trans-Ocean News Service, a propaganda outfit with offices in New York and Washington. Zapp came to this country after being booted out of South Africa by the British government.

Trans-Ocean records seized by the committee show that Zapp is being financed by Berlin. He has received a number of bank drafts, among them one for $30,000 directly from the Bank of Berlin, and also considerable sums from the Bank of Mexico, which have been traced to German sources. Copies of letters written and received by Zapp. In the possession of the committee, end with the salutation "Heil Hitler."

Similar evidence involves the German Railroad Information office, a professed tourist agency at 11 West 57th St., N. Y.

HOT CONSULS

Two of the consuls implicated in the evidence the committee has turned over to the state department are Captain Fritz Wiedemann, at San Francisco, and Herbert Scholz, at Boston. Letters show both Nazis up to their armpits in fifth column enterprises.

Wiedemann, Hitler's World War captain, is recognized in diplomatic circles as his personal representative in this country. Situated on the west coast, his role now is especially important as a result of the Axis-Jap alliance. Scholz is credited with being the guiding hand behind the American Fellowship forum.

He has been closely associated with Friedrich Ernst Auhagen, Nazi lecturer and president of the Forum, who was seized in Los Angeles recently as he was attempting to board a ship for Japan. The committee is holding Auhagen as a key witness.

Other evidence in its possession discloses the existence of a secret fascist army in the U. S., running into the thousands. Chief organizers of this force have been the German-American Bund, the Ku Klux Klan, Italian-American clubs and German veteran societies.

Linked up with all these operations is the German Library of Information, official Nazi propaganda agency in New York. A raid by committee agents produced a mailing list of over 70,000 names, banks and business concerns in the New York area alone.

ON THE BATTLEFRONT

REPS: Wendell Willkie's zealous wooing of Senator Hiram Johnson was not in vain. The Californian has privately decided to endorse him and will make a public declaration shortly.

A militant isolationist and long a foe of Britain, Johnson generally disapproves of Willkie's foreign views. But Johnson hates Roosevelt more than he dislikes Willkie's international ideas, so the latter will get his very considerable political blessing.

Much of the credit for this is due Senator Charles McNary. John has long had a warm attachment for the astute Oregonian and McNary had no trouble persuading him to come out for Willkie, particularly after he counseled Johnson to say nothing until the expiration of the final date for an independent to file against Johnson.

Johnson still is undecided whether he will return to California for an active campaign. Not in the best of health, the chances are that he won't, but instead will make several speeches by radio.

DEMS: Senator David Walsh of Massachusetts is in a pickle. Up for election, he has Jim Farley's promise to make a speech for him. But Jim has let it be known that while he will speak for Walsh, he intends to say nothing in the talk about FDR. Publicly, Jim hasn't bolted, but he is as strongly anti-third term as ever.

Mayor LaGuardia, head of the Independent Voters Committee for Roosevelt and long Thumbs-down on Farley, has taken up his ultimatum. "The Little Flower" has sent word to Walsh that if Farley doesn't endorse FDR in the speech, then he (LaGuardia) will come to Boston and make a speech for Roosevelt and not mention Walsh.

Walsh, caught in the middle, is wringing his hands. But the New Dealers are unmoved. They are saying to him, "You got Farley to agree to go to Boston; now you handle him. This is your baby. You fix it—or else."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

To disprove that all big business men favor appeasement, a group of leading industrialists shortly will issue a joint statement calling for maximum aid to Britain and an unyielding policy toward the Axis-Japanese alliance. W. L. Clayton, one of the biggest cotton merchants in the country, is a leader in the movement. . . . While General Hugh Johnson, ex-NRA boss, was blasting at Elliott Roosevelt for being given a "paper work" assignment as an Air Corps Captain, Johnson's son, Captain Kilbourne Johnson, a regular army officer, got himself a desk job in the office of the selective service administration. . . . Baldish Little Seneca Alva Adams, Colorado isolationist who rates himself a big shot on the senate appropriations committee, had his wings sharply clipped by the house. Adams struck out of the last defense funds bill an $80,000,000 item for a network of flying fields. Of this appropriation $30,000,000 was in cash and $50,000,000 authorization. Cuffing Adams aside, the house not only restored the item but upped the cash sum of $40,000,000. . . . Edward H. McCrahan, World War veteran, has proposed a new army decoration to the War department—a "Good Conduct Medal" that would be given to all honorably discharged veterans and draftees. (Copyright, 1940)

GEN. JOHNSON UNDER FIRE

Editor Post-Crescent—Gen. Hugh Johnson recently delivered himself of a severe attack upon the CAA Civilian Pilot Training Program. In general it consisted of paraphrasing an earlier and more severe attack in an aviation trade magazine, "American Aviation," by its editor, Wayne W. Parrish. In fact, General Johnson gave Mr. Parrish as authority for several of his statements.

General Johnson, in his column, made numerous serious misstatements. He said the program is "a plan to train 50,000 pilots for military and naval service." This is simply not true. It is a plan to train civilian pilots, in varying degrees, as a reservoir from which the armed forces can draw pilot material.

It is the hope that the more advanced of these students—graduates of the secondary course—can be trained by the armed forces into military pilots in a considerably shorter time than without this training.

General Johnson says "no military or naval authority is very clearly on record" on this point. If he had taken one glance at the printed record of the appropriation hearings for this program, held on May 29, 1940, he could have learned that both Brig. Gen. Jacob Fickel, assistant chief of the Army Air Corps, and Capt. George D. Murray of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics testified clearly their belief that the program would be a valuable "feeder" to the military services. They testified in considerable detail, for anyone to read who was interested in the facts.

General Johnson calls the pilot-training program "a slapped-together hay crate organization of civilian pilots," and doubts that "a safe and uniform course of instruction can be given." He says the program is "not properly supervised" and "dangerous."

A little casual reading in the aviation field would have shown General Johnson that his informant, Wayne Parrish, stands alone among aviation publishers in his bitter attitude toward the pilot-training program. Surely this would suggest a bug under the chip, somewhere, to any fair-minded person.

General Johnson did not state—and may not know—that his informant, Wayne Parrish, wrote high praise of this program only three months ago, on July 1, 1940, calling its safety record "a 20th Century miracle," describing it as "so far beyond anything previously established for flight training as to be in a different mathematical world," and praising the letting of the training to private flying firms "instead of creating a vast bureaucracy." This, now, General Johnson calls "a slapped-together hay crate organization."

The magazine "Sportsman Pilot" said on August 15: "The instruction is so superior to training available before the program was launched that comparisons are futile." It added "the entire training . . . is executed in a scientific and controlled manner."

"Aviation" magazine said in April: "The CAA flight training program has brought other benefits. . . . Insurance rates are down to new lows. . . . Airports are better. . . . Flight instruction is definitely better. . . . Airplanes are also better."

The "slapped-together hay crate organization" at which General Johnson sneers consists of the heads of about 700 commercial flying-schools from coast to coast. Many of these men helped pioneer this industry, and they are the backbone of private flying in the United States today.

In this training program they are setting records surpassing anything the country ever saw before, and nearly all the interested commentators seem to know it except Mr. Parrish and General Johnson.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO
Wednesday, Oct. 13, 1915

Dispatches stated Bulgaria had declared war on Serbia. It was expected the Serbian temporary capital would be transferred from Nish to Monastir within 48 hours.

John Strange of Neenah was unanimously reelected president of the Fox River Valley Efficiency league. Boston came from behind that day, tied the score with two runs in the eighth and won out over Philadelphia in the ninth inning, 5 to 4, to cop the world's championship. Foster and Thomas formed the winning battery.

10 YEARS AGO
Wednesday, Oct. 8, 1930

Behind the wonderful pitching of big George Earnshaw, Connie Mack's Athletics that day won their second successive world's baseball championship, crushing the St. Louis Cardinals, 7 to 1, in the sixth game. It gave the A's the series, four games to two.

The weather during the previous few days had been ideal as far as local nimrods were concerned. Several had managed to bag their limit of black mallards and canvasbacks.

While the city council and municipal golf course patrons were discussing whether action should be taken at that time to acquire property for enlarging the municipal course to 18 holes, the park commission had gone on record as having no recommendation to make at that time relative to enlarging the course.

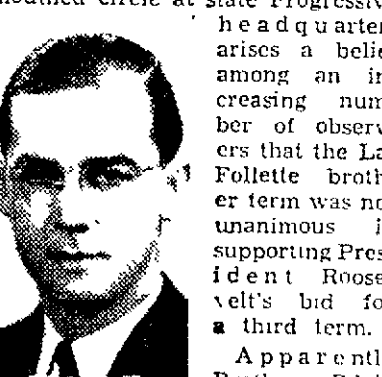

Something No Good Neighbor Should Permit

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—From a variety of reports simmering past the close-mouthed circle at state Progressive headquarters out of sympathy with the gesture for Democratic support which Senator Bob decided upon last week in publicly announcing that he would vote for the president on Nov. 5, and there are certain pieces of evidence which support that belief.

In the first place, LaFollette's statement was delayed until the last possible moment, indicating, perhaps, that there was a disagreement in his circle of advisors.

Again, the statement merely announced that he would vote for Mr. Roosevelt, did not urge other Progressives to do so. Moreover, the intervening paragraphs in the long declaration consisted of the same arguments which both brothers have long used to appeal for the establishment of a new liberal political alignment in America.

Further, Brother Phil has been out on the highways of Wisconsin for two weeks, campaigning for his party's candidates, but he has yet to indicate publicly that he is supporting the president. He has not discussed Senator LaFollette's statement, and apparently does not intend to do so.

Probably the most convincing factor, however, is the absence of any reference to the president or the third term campaign in the Progressive state platform.

That platform, it can be said without criticism of the party, was steered by the regular party leaders, just as were the Democratic and Republican platforms. It reflected the views of the men who are closest to LaFollette, such men as J. K. Kyle, who was renamed chairman without special difficulty. The convention which adopted it was on the "spot," so to speak, meeting as it did within 24 hours after Senator LaFollette's statement was broadcast.

Yet the proceeding by which the convention adopted a resolution supporting the third term was separate from the platform session, the resolution was adopted and sent to Washington as something extraneous. It found no place in the party's official statement of philosophy and proposals. Thus for all up-state Progressives who read their official platform know, the Progressive party has taken no stand on the third term issue.

KRESKY DILEMMA

Probably the most harried politician in Wisconsin this week was Michael F. Kresky, Democratic and Progressive congressional nominee in the Eight congressional district, who had to choose his ticket for the November election campaign.

Kresky was bound to choose between the Progressive party, which nurtured him politically since as a young man he went to Washington to work for a Progressive congressman, and the Democratic party, which gave him a relatively handsome endorsement in the primary and which appears by all measurements to be the stronger vehicle in the district this year.

It may be unkind to suggest it now, but Kresky could have followed the lead of some other office-seekers in Wisconsin in recent years and avoided embarrassment by announcing before the primary

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

WHAT DO YOU CALL 'EM?

If you were half the scholar you pretend to be you would learn the definitions of the words you use. Writes "Well Meaning Crank," who informs me that a somersault is a complete revolution in the air, either front, side or back. If you had remembered your high school Latin or French, continues Crank, you would have found the word somersault derived from the Latin supra (above) and saltus (a leap) or the French sautre and sault. So, my dear savant, don't be so depressed and exasperated when your readers or correspondents understand better than yourself what you are trying to say.

In the New York Medical Journal long ago, I reported my observations on the therapeutic value of rolls before breakfast. In that report I deplored the confusion of X. Webster's somersaults with mine. I maintained that Webster's "leap in which a person turns his heels over his head, forward or backward, without touching the ground" is not a somersault at all, but an acrobatic. To perform an acrobatic the acrobat must leap or spring into the air. In contrast to that, a somersault, as I define it—and do it every morning for the benefit of my circulation—is a simple maneuver easily within the capacity of any one not bedridden or crippled and from four to eighty years of age. Turning my somersaults you never lose contact with the floor, mat or ground. You just curl up tightly and roll over—coming up on your feet of course.

More specific instructions together with indications for turning somersaults are given in "Invitation to the Somersaultaueque" available on request if you enclose stamped envelope bearing your address. Morning and evening rolls, half a dozen or a dozen before breakfast and before retiring, tend to counteract the evil consequences of flabbiness, softness, sedentary habit, or at least to counteract the splanchnic blood stasis due to such abnormal existence. A large portion of the entire volume of blood in the body may stagnate in the vast network of vessels in the abdomen, and somersaults help to pump some of this blood back into circulation.

A clergyman who sought advice about health wrote "Your heresy is delightful," implying that even tho I am out of line about colds, uric acid, rheumatism, nervous exhaustion and auto-intoxication, still my views are amusing when one is not too ill to enjoy them. Perhaps some people who regard Webster as a better authority than I am agree with the clergyman. All right, I can only offer my medicine—you needn't take it if you think it is too silly.

At that, Webster hedges a bit, for he gives a second definition of somersault as "a turning end over end." News movies, if I recall, showed the late Luther Burbank rolling somersaults (Brady fashion) on his lawn on his 70th or 75th birthday.

I ask you, if you can't call 'em somersaults what do you call 'em? QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Multiple Neuritis
My doctor says I have multiple neuritis (beriberi). Can this be inherited. He thinks I inherited it because years of treatment have not given any improvement. I have good health otherwise, except constipation. Have taken capsules, liver preparations, yeast and many other remedies without avail. I am sixty. This started about five years ago. (W. F.)

Answer—No, it is not inherited. That he would be the candidate of the party which gave him most votes in the event he won two nominations.

DIM LIGHTS FOR SAFETY

Pegler Figures the New Deal Has Been in There Long Enough

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Well, as I was saying, I emerged from my political childhood into adolescence about the time of Mr. Roosevelt's first election, for which I was responsible to the extent of one vote, and this spell or rather high-strung emotional confusion lasted through the campaign of 1936, when I voted for him again.

That election was just a formality, anyway. The Republicans weren't in shape, and you could tell they were only going through the motions when they nominated Alf Landon. Sometimes you see a parallel in baseball when a good old club is weeding out veterans who are over the hill and wasting a season on reorganization. The Republicans were getting rid of their Jim Watsons and the like, and had changed managers, too, and it wasn't their year and they knew it.

Maybe you have seen games in which the skipper of a major league club sends in some stranger to pitch who has nothing but some home-town clippings and a high-school curve and leaves him in there, running the outfield ragged, rather than waste a better man's arm on a game that can't be saved, anyway.

Even so, the returns weren't as bad as we all have been thinking in our careless way. In claiming their overwhelming mandate and the virtual repudiation of the two-party system in the United States the New Deal emphasized the electoral vote, which was 523 to 8, and the fact that they carried 46 out of 48 states. But, after all, even with Landon in there, the Republicans ran up a score of about 163 to Mr. Roosevelt's 274 in the popular vote, which brings the ratio down to much more respectable trim.

Anyway, I was still voting for Mr. Roosevelt in 1936, and this time I think I was more against his enemies than for him. He had tangled with Huey Long, who was, to my way of thinking, a really bad man, and Father Coughlin was yapping and snarling in a way that seemed to me to portend some terrible disturbance and no good result. I thought he ought to be slapped down. He certainly was, too, because his guy, a fellow by the name of Lemke, if you remember, drew only the nuts and bolts—less than 900,000 all told.

It isn't for me to say—although I have my private opinion—whether I have now come to political maturity, stood still or slipped back into romps. But during this second term of the New Deal I have been wondering how long it is going to take our president to get hot about recovery and re-employment, which you may remember were his missions back in the very beginning. He was going to put people back to work, and they were going to spend their earnings buying the stuff which their neighbors had manufactured and grown. But in this term we have heard less and, lately, nothing about recovery. And re-employment, except in the munitions trade and other lines incidental to rearmament, is off the program entirely.

Mr. Big Doesn't Seem To Care For Business I never heard President Roosevelt say a kind word for business—by which I mean private business—and have come to the conclusion that,

180 Aliens Register At Appleton Office

About 180 aliens have registered at the Appleton post office since the registration was opened, Postmaster Stephen Balliet said today.

Balliet reported that "about four or five" are coming in daily and urged prompt registration.

realize that in such a situation their unions, like the German unions, would become government auxiliaries and soon lose their entity altogether. I certainly don't claim to know whether Mr. Willkie could revive private business and employment, but I am convinced that President Roosevelt either doesn't want to or thinks it is impossible and not worth the effort.

Then, too, I have reached a belief that, after holding so much power so long, the New Deal crowd has lost their moral bearings and have become as cynical and downright dishonest on matters of graft and patronage which often amounts to graft, that they are no better than the crooks whom they harassed with such pious fury "way back in the early days. They seem not to know that wrong is wrong now.

I never thought it would come to this with me. I liked Mr. Roosevelt real well in 1932.

Frey Taken Down a Couple Notches in Martin Ruling

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—One paragraph in a long opinion by Attorney General John E. Martin to the state conservation department Tuesday had effectively deprived August Frey, director of the state bureau of research of much of the authority which has made him one of the most prominent men in the Heil administration during the last 18 months. The attorney told the conservation commission, in the course of a discussion of financing the Central Wisconsin public hunting grounds area recently leased from the federal government that Frey has no authority to supervise, veto or interfere with state purchasing activities, and that the functions of the bureau of research as defined by law were confined to investigating state government administrative operations for the purpose of recommending changes in procedure to obtain greater efficiency and economy.

During the last year Frey and his research staff have begun two investigations of state departments under the authority granted by the law which created the department with an unlimited appropriation last year.

Governor Heil has never acted upon the recommendations made by Frey in the latter's investigation of the state highway department, and has never made the report of that investigation public. The second investigation, into the affairs of the state conservation department, was suspended suddenly last summer after hearings were started. It was generally assumed that Heil had called off his research director because of widespread and bitter criticism.

It is known that since that time Frey has wielded a strong influence in state purchasing policies, in several instances refusing to allow requisitions for certain purchases to pass. Among them was a request received by the state beverage tax division, headed by John W. Roach, for firearms with which to equip his field force.

Holding the title of state purchasing director, under the control of the executive office, is F. X. Ritger, native of Hortonville. During the last 18 months Ritger's office has been closely supervised by Frey and his research bureau staff, which was assumed to have the veto power.

The attorney general's opinion, however, unless contested, maintains unequivocally that Frey's department has no authority to pass on state requisitions.

Kresky Decides to Seek Election on Progressive Ticket

State Senator Michael Kresky, Green Bay, nominated for congress on both the Progressive and Democratic tickets in the primary, will seek election in November on the Progressive ticket, he announced today.

In making his announcement Kresky said: "In the recent primary election, the voters of the Eighth congressional district made it perfectly clear that they well understood that the liberal Democrats and Progressives must join forces.

The liberal voters indicated at the primary that they recall with regret an election two years ago when the Democrats and Progressives divided their forces, and Joshua Johns, a reactionary Republican, was elected to congress although nearly two thirds of the votes were marked for his opponents.

"My nomination by both the Democrats and Progressives of this district merely means that the district does not propose that this shall happen again. United the liberal Democrats and Progressives stand. Democrats will not be voting out of the party when they mark their vote for me in the Progressive column, but will be voting for one who as truly represents the liberalism of the nation. The Democratic party as he represents the political philosophy of the late Robert M. LaFollette and his two sons."

What's New at the Library

The flood of books about country doctors, country lawyers and country editors is augmented now by a new book entitled "Hoss Doctor" by R. J. Dinsmore which is the memoirs of a country veterinarian whose life has been filled with adventures and exciting incident. The reader is made to share in what has been the best of America—a life lived close to the soil and yet urbane in its conception of life—salted with native humor, peppered with adventure and seasoned with the friendship of characters as diverse as humanity.

"Best Places to Eat from Coast to Coast" compiled by Carl A. Barrett, president of the Illinois Automobile club, was published to meet the need of motorists and help them find eating establishments in which they can have confidence as they travel through the various states.

Harry Elmer Barnes, writer of a column in the New York World Telegram and author of several books and articles in the field of history and sociology, discusses in his new book, "Society in Transition," such topics as intellectual emancipation, propaganda, the waste and conservation of resources, industrial warfare, unemployment, tax and crime, the race problem and similar subjects.

Extending the frontiers of learning and education rather than traveling in a covered wagon or taming the primeval forest was the type of pioneering done by Abraham Flexner, whose autobiography, "I Remember," has been published recently. His reports after touring the medical schools of this country and Canada for the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching led to a complete revolution in medical instruction and research. He was called to the General Education Board, a Rockefeller foundation, and on the basis of a brief memorandum the board about $50,000,000 was devoted to the reorganization of medical education in the United States in accordance with Dr. Flexner's reports to the Carnegie Foundation. In 1928 Dr. Flexner gave the Rhodes lectures at Oxford. The book describes from the inside a whole epoch in the history of American medicine and education.

"Trelawny" by Margaret Armstrong is built around a life of almost incredible adventure, that of Edward Trelawny. While still a very young man, sailing the Indian Ocean under the French flag, he captured a pirate town in Madagascar, rescued the daughter of an Arab sheik and married her, only to lose her by poisoning. In Italy his friendship with Shelley ripened into the greatest experience of his life, and after Shelley's tragic death it was Trelawny who undertook the burning of his body on the beach near Via Regio. Fighting with Byron for the freedom of Greece, living in a cave on Mount Atlas with a Greek chieftain, visiting America where he bought a slave to set him free—these and other experiences are told in this volume.

Waupaca — Plans are still tentative regarding the duties and obligations of county, city, village and town clerks in the Oct. 16 draft registration. As soon as all the information is received County Clerk L. J. Steiger plans to meet with each of the county registrars and make final arrangements.

City Clerk W. J. Nelson is tentatively planning to enlist all election inspectors and clerks over 35 years of age, to be in charge of the city conscription. This will mean that eight of the ten clerks will serve: A. J. Pinkerton, Jack Hurd, M. A. Paulson, Paul McHenry, Rob. Holly, Oliver Browne, Alton Hanson and Fred Dahm. Richard Johnson and Gordon Doerflinger are under the age limit. Sixteen typewriters will be procured and as many typists, presumably from the high school, to help the inspectors in the work.

Board Claims Mixed Grades Are Necessary

Had Choice of Hiring More Help or Shifting Edison School Teachers

Gordon Derber, member of the Edison Parent-Teacher association said the combined grade system introduced at Edison school this year had been represented to parents during a squabble at an association meeting Monday night as something to be desired and asked the board of education at Morgan school last night whether it had been a matter of "necessity or choice."

Pointing out that there had been a loss of but one pupil in enrollment this year and a loss of three teachers, Derber said "it just doesn't make sense." The combining of grades is a step backward in his opinion because, he said, the pupils don't get an equal opportunity, the smaller ones being unable to follow and the larger children being too far ahead. "A sufficient number of good teachers should come before million dollar buildings," he asserted.

Ben J. Rohan, superintendent of schools, backed by board members, said an unusual situation had arisen and they were trying to make the best of it, the combined grades being a case of necessity. He pointed out that enrollment at Edison school last year was 348 while on Sept. 16 this year it was 335. He said Mr. Derber's figure of 347 was taken on Sept. 27 and illustrated that school enrollment seldom is the same two days in a row, thus creating many problems.

Three Alternatives
Mr. Rohan said it was a case of hiring three more teachers for schools in other parts of the city where classes were excessively large or combining grades at Edison school where teacher load was light. He said the board also considered transferring tuition students to Edison to fill out the classes but didn't think that was desirable. He did feel, however, that there were certain advantages for the pupils in a mixed grade while Derber maintained that it handicapped the older pupils. Mr. Rohan said they'd rather not have combined grades because they are hard to administer but he was convinced the individual child "doesn't lose anything."

The board granted permission for the Appleton High school band to take part in a parade and rally Oct. 15 being sponsored by the American Legion as a demonstration for the national guardsmen who are leaving for a year's training in Louisiana.

Oct. 22 Date For Departure Of Company D

Appleton Guardsmen To Be Quartered in Armory for a Week

Announcement of plans for mobilizing and transporting the 32nd division, Wisconsin and Michigan National Guard, for its year of intensive training makes it appear certain that Company D of Appleton will leave Tuesday, Oct. 22.

Major General Irving A. Fish of Milwaukee today said that a special train will leave Marmette on that date. It is assumed that the Appleton company will be assigned to that train.

Adjutant General Ralph M. Immell today reported that Tuesday, Oct. 15, is the date for mobilization of Wisconsin guard companies for 12 months of active military service.

Guardsmen will assemble at their respective armories at 8 o'clock next Tuesday morning. If the Appleton unit is scheduled to leave Oct. 22, it will mean the guardsmen will be quartered in the armory for exactly a week.

Captain H. J. Piette, company commander said today that "at least 40" of the men will be sleeping in the armory while those who live in Appleton will sleep at their homes.

The day's routine will start with first call at 6:30. The guardsmen will drill from 8 o'clock in the morning until 11:30 and from 1 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon, with retreat at 5 o'clock.

Physical Examinations
Captain Piette reported that physical examinations and induction will be held Saturday, Oct. 19.

Service companies of Wisconsin regiments will proceed to Camp Williams, state national guard training area, to pick up supplies, guns and other equipment, while other units will mobilize in home station armories.

Motor convoys, to be accompanied by medical detachments, are scheduled to leave Oct. 17 and 18 for the trek to Camp Beauregard, which is expected to require four days. Troops will bivouac at designated points en route.

Other Wisconsin units will go on 10 special trains. Similar schedules for motor convoys and trains were ordered for the 4,500 troops from Michigan.

The present train schedule for Wisconsin troops calls for sections to leave Camp Douglas, La Crosse, Sheboygan and Oshkosh on Oct. 20; Milwaukee, Stoughton, Plattville, Milton Junction, Menomonee and Marshfield on Oct. 21, and Superior, Elroy, Tomah, Eau Claire and Marinette on Oct. 22.

General Fish said the 32nd division would occupy the Louisiana national guard area near Alexandria until the new camp in the Kisatchie national forest was completed.

Report 2 Out of 3 Nazi Planes Downed

A South Coast Town, England.—Two out of three German planes which raided this town today were shot down after a series of low-flying attacks in which residents said they machine-gunned the streets and killed at least three persons.

The other plane was seen to fall into the sea, home guards claiming credit for its destruction.

Miss Mary Orison, school nurse, told juniors of Appleton High school the fundamentals of first aid in an address Monday afternoon at the school. Her talk was part of the junior leadership curriculum.

"Remember that the first principle of first aid," Miss Orison stated, "is to make the patient more comfortable and to prevent further injury. All too frequently first aid efforts do more harm than good."

Miss Orison demonstrated the use of tourniquets in the prevention of bleeding and showed the group how to make an emergency splint. She discussed the types of burns and suggested first aid remedies for each. A Red Cross film which Miss Orison showed preceding her talk illustrated the Red Cross method of life saving and artificial respiration as well as other first aid technique.

Giordana, Reed To Meet Friday In Grid Classic

Kaukauna, Shawano Stars to Lead Teams In Conference Battle

Kaukauna—Coach Paul E. Little's high school griders went through another intensive practice last night, the second of the week, in preparation for the invasion of the Shawano Indians Friday night. It will be the first home game for Kaukauna under the lamps.

The contest will feature the meeting of Karl Giordana and Billy Reed, two of the greatest athletes the Northwestern conference has ever turned out, for the final time on the gridiron. Both do most of their team's running, passing and punting.

Without a doubt Reed is the smoothest running back in the conference, specializing in sweeps around end. Giordana's sheer power is unequalled, the Kaw back having averaged more than 7 yards a try this season. Reed also is the loop's best passer, with Jack Anderson and his favorite receiver. Against this combination the Kaw will pit the Giordana to Bill Alger duo, which has clicked four times for touchdowns.

23 Points So Far
In scoring a touchdown and making three extra points against Neenah Giordana ran his season's total to 29, leading the Kaukauna scorers. Following him are Alger 24, Bob Danner and Willis Ranquette 12 and John Rieth and George Steffens, 6 each.

With a 4-quarter battle in prospect Little is devoting some time this week to his reserves. With a squad of more than 50 to pick from the Kaw probably have a slight advantage over the visitors in this department.

At least one Shawano sportswriter took last year's 13 to 9 Kaukauna victory at Shawano as due to purposefully rough play, and his comments after that game have been posted on the locker room board. The Shawano writer insists a "feud" is now on between the two eleven.

49 New Volumes Added to Library

Kaukauna — Circulation in September at Kaukauna public library was 3,281 books, according to Miss Bernice M. Happer, librarian, a gain of 191 over the same period last year. Added to the shelves were 49 new volumes. New readers registered were 104, with 100 withdrawing.

A recent addition is "Military Basic Course," by Captain Frank Cruikshank of the army reserve, which gives information on army history, drill regulations, equipment, ceremonies, orders and signals. The book is now available for 14-day loans.

Included in books added last month are "Dark Lightening," Miller, "Hillbilly Doctor," Seifert, "Once Beyond the Reef," Holton, "Parish," "Knights Without Arms," Hilton, "Mr. and Mrs. Meigs," Corbett, "Secret of the Marshbanks," Norris, "Red Gardenias," Latimer, "Sir Adam Disappeared," Oppenheim, "Fox Over Fundy," Cunningham, "Arts in the Classroom," O'Leary, "Book of Low Cost Houses," "Plumbing," Mathias, "Increasing Federal Power," Summers, "Internal Electric Wiring," Uhl, "Fighting Planes of the World," Law.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. William Dowling is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

Cites Figures to Show Supreme Court Is 1-Sided

Taxpayer Has Less And Less Chance of Getting Case Reviewed

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—When the supreme court of the United States came back into session this year, it sent a shiver of apprehension throughout the country, for the days of the private citizen in getting his day in court, so to speak, are numbered. Statistics of the last term of the court reveal that the taxpayer has less and less of a chance of getting a review of his case if he has been ruled upon adversely by the lower courts reversed if the administration itself appeals the case.

This extraordinary situation which has arisen since President Roosevelt was able to place five out of the nine justices on the highest bench of the land is causing lawyers in many parts of the country to feel that the bureaucrats who rule on tax cases, for instance, need not worry any more about being reversed by the courts. They can be as arbitrary as they like. As a matter of fact with the administration in complete control of the judicial branch of the government, the "finding" or ruling by an administration board or commission is just about equivalent nowadays to a final decision.

The tendency of the supreme court to uphold the administration is so flagrant that it is revealed by the statistics that it leaves one with the impression that either the best lawyers of the country have suddenly lost all knowledge of the law or that the New Deal's department of justice under Attorney General Jackson is the smartest group of lawyers the country has ever had or that the administration appointees on the supreme court still feel they are a part of the New Deal when it comes to the philosophy of taxation.

No Denials
In the last term of the supreme court, the administration was actually held by the supreme court to be 100 per cent right in its requests for review of tax cases decided in the lower courts. Twenty-nine petitions for review in federal tax cases were granted and not a single one was denied. Now it also turns out that the administration won out in 18 of these cases, and lost only 5, and the others have not been determined. Evidently the lower courts have also suddenly lost their knowledge of tax law.

It so happens also that cases involving tax matters arising through state courts have been given the review sought by the administration in nine instances and there was not a single denial. When it came to deciding the cases, the administration won five of the nine, one was vacated and remanded and three were undetermined.

In all other cases apart from taxes where the administration lost in a lower court, the department of justice was granted review in 31 and denied only 9. Fourteen were subsequently won by the administration, three by the private litigants and fourteen are undetermined.

The private citizen who took the initiative in seeking review by the supreme court in cases decided against him in lower courts fared pretty badly. In 144 tax cases, 96 were denied review and only 19 were granted. But of those given review and subsequently decided the

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMANN

The Japanese Pressure on American Opinion

The publication of the Pact of Berlin has been followed by an interview of the Japanese Premier, Prince Konoze, in which he tells us that the United States must "positively co-operate with Axis construction of a new world order" and that "whether the Pacific will become the scene of war or peace depends on whether Japan and the United States respect and understand each other's position." What we must understand and respect and also "positively co-operate with," he tells us, is Japan's leadership in the Far East.

The question then is just what Prince Konoze means by positive cooperation with Japan. Americans are under the impression—and if they are wrong, Prince Konoze should lose no time before correcting the impression—that Japan wants the United States (1) to give no further aid to China, (2) to ap-taxpayer lost eight and won only two. Nine are undetermined. Where the taxpayer was ruled against, evidently the supreme court thinks the lower courts know the law.

Refused Review
In all other cases apart from taxation the showing for the private citizen was also very bad. Out of 172 cases, private citizens who petitioned were refused review in 148 cases. But here, too, out of the 24 that were given consideration, the private citizen lost out to the administration in 10 out of the 15 cases decided.

Thus the administration is being granted review in the largest percentage of cases in seven years. The fact that the administration is getting such treatment at the hands of what one of the new justices is calling the "reconstructed court" is exciting a great deal of comment among members of the war, so many of whom feel it is hopeless to appeal for justice before the present supreme court.

It does seem peculiar that the administration should be right 100 per cent of the time in tax cases in appealing for review. This is a perfect record which in view of the complexity of tax questions nowadays cannot but cause astonishment. But while attributing to the new court the highest motives of integrity, it would appear that the New Deal majority on the court has adopted an extreme economic philosophy on taxation in keeping with the revolutionary ideas of their confederates in the New Deal in the legislative and executive branches of the government.

Confiscation
This trend toward confiscation of private property by unjust administration of the tax laws in violation of the letter and the spirit of the constitution is not surprising in view of the campaign which President Roosevelt carried on in 1937 against the then existing supreme court. Mr. Roosevelt's supporters have repeatedly boasted since that he won that battle because fate gave him five appointments to make and he chose five justices from his close friends and supporters. It is frequently contended in Washington that the New Deal need have no further worries about having its decisions reversed by the highest court.

This is not so much a matter of party attitude, but of radicalism. When laws that have been established for generations governing, for instance, the system of making wills and trusts for the widows and children of those who have accumulated savings are upset suddenly so that it is difficult to make a trust estate that will not run the risk of having some fundamental principle reversed arbitrarily, it can readily be understood why the present administration's blitzkrieg that captured the supreme court is the subject of widespread discussion among lawyers. They see the rights of the citizen being gradually curtailed which is what has happened in totalitarian countries under national socialism and fascism.

prove the Japanese blockade of China by accepting the permanent closing of the Burma road, (3) to cease protesting against the violation of our treaty rights in China, (4) to withdraw all opposition to anything Japan may choose to do in the Philippines, in the Netherlands Indies, in Indo-China, in the French and British islands of the Pacific, (5) to make no arrangements with the British for the use of naval and air bases in the Pacific and finally (6) to cooperate positively with Japan's conquest of the Far East by selling Japan all the materials she needs and by providing her with the money to do this through continuing to buy her exports.

We believe that Japan is saying that in the Far East we are to abandon the Chinese, the Dutch, the British, the Australians, the French, and that in Europe we are to abandon the British. We believe we are being told that we are to assist Japan in making herself supreme in the Far East and in most of the Pacific, that we are to assist Germany and Italy in making themselves supreme in Europe and in the Atlantic, and that if we do, then the three Axis powers who are bound together by a ten-year alliance will, as Prince Konoze puts it, recognize our leadership in the Americas. We think this means that they will permit us to overrun and conquer our neighbors from Mexico to the Argentine as they are overrunning and trying to conquer the nations of Europe and all the peoples of the Far East. We understand Prince Konoze to say that if we will agree to stand all alone, scuttling all our friends on both sides of us, then the three totalitarian states standing firmly together for the next ten years will permit us to do what they will permit us to do. We think he is telling us that if we will agree to be completely isolated in the face of a ten-year Triple Alliance, then we shall have achieved that respect and understanding and positive cooperation which Prince Konoze says is the only way to maintain the peace.

It Presents A New Picture Of The Future
There are, to be sure, some Americans who think we should accept this program, a negligible few because they sympathize with the Axis, a great many more because they feel that the Axis is too strong to be resisted until the American defenses have been strengthened. The signing of the Pact of Berlin and the statement of Prince Konoze compel all of us who have favored a Fabian policy of conciliation with Japan to reconsider our position. For we know now that Japan will not negotiate a reasonable settlement which will preserve the independence of any of the other peoples of the Far East. But what is very much more important to the United States, we begin to see now that the net effect of the Berlin-Tokio policy would be to make it impossible for us to build adequate defenses.

In spite of the fog of the political campaign, the American people will realize that this is what the new Triple Alliance means. For they will say to themselves—in fact, they are already saying to themselves: if this is the way we are going to be talked at now from Tokyo, Berlin and Rome, now while the Germans are being blockaded and bombed, while the Italians are confined to their harbors, and while the Japanese are entangled in their long Chinese war, how shall we be talked at if we not only permit them, but positively co-operate with them, in destroying the British and the Chinese? If this is the way we are to be threatened today, what will Tokyo be saying if Japan has finished with China, has occupied Singapore, conquered the Philippines and the Netherlands Indies, put her hands on the oil and rubber and tin of the Far East—and what will Berlin and Rome be saying if at the same time their warships and airplanes are loose in the Atlantic?

Desirable as it would be to sit still and do nothing in the Far East until we have another navy and fifty thousand airplanes, the fact is that if nobody is left in Europe and Asia to check the Triple Alliance, we shall then, with all the arms now contracted for by relatively weaker than we are today. The conquest of China and the Netherlands Indies and the destruction of the British power in the Far East would add more naval power to Japan than we could hope to offset in a ten-year building program. Therefore, if we merely sit still and do nothing to check the conquest of the Far East, we shall, in spite of our best efforts, not be growing stronger; we shall in fact be growing weaker. If today, when Japan is held up in China and is dependent upon supplies from us and from the unconquered East, we wonder whether we are strong enough to say to her, "so far and no further," how could we hope to talk as equals to a victorious Japan with the whole East under her dominion?

Won't Do To Push U. S. Around Too Much
This is the way the American people are bound to look upon this matter, and therefore the Japanese will be well advised to moderate their language and to restrain their actions. No good will come to them if they continue to force the American people into a position where the risk of not taking positive measures to maintain their security will appear to them a much greater risk, than the risk of taking positive measures. The American people are reluctant to come to this conclusion.

Intelligence Quiz
At Meeting of Lions
Waspac — Lions submitted to an intelligence quiz at their Monday night meeting at Hotel Delevan, when Superintendent George Hendrickson asked each member a question relating to civics or current events as the roll was called.

On Oct. 23 the club will observe its fifteenth anniversary of the granting of the charter. It will be a dinner meeting at the hotel and will include the wives. Plans are in the hands of the president, C. L. Booth, the secretary, George Klake and a committee of three—R. D. Luther, Phillip Teisberg and John Burnham.

The annual turkey day is in the offing, to be sponsored by the Lions club and association of commerce, but no definite plans have been made.

But it will not require many more threats and many more aggressive acts like that in Indo-China to convince them that they cannot sit still while all their potential allies are destroyed and the strategic keys of the oceans are taken over by the Triple Alliance.

APPLETON, WISCONSIN, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1940

AFTER THE BATTLE WAS OVER—Manager Bill McKechnie (right) of the new world champions, the Cincinnati Reds, looked more worn out than Del Baker (left), manager of the vanquished Detroit Tigers, when the two got together in Cincinnati after the last series game in Cincinnati. The Reds won the championship with a 2 to 1 triumph in the seventh game.

Vitt Now in Bad With Slapnicka

Indians' Vice President Denies Front Office Didn't Back Manager

Cleveland —(AP)— C. C. Slapnicka, vice president of the Cleveland Baseball club, took issue today with Manager Oscar Vitt's complaint blaming non-support for his troubles.

"In answer to the statement Vitt made in regard to not receiving the support of the front office," Slapnicka said, "I wish to say that it was not a true statement of fact."

Vitt had opened up at his Oakland, Calif., home with the complaint that "a different situation would have prevailed had I been given the backing any manager is entitled to expect."

Vitt also cited an incident in which he said a player he had suspended returned with the explanation he had "fixed it up with the front office."

Slapnicka replied: "Vitt's reference to a player whom he suspended likewise is only partially correct."

"It was at Manager Vitt's own suggestion and request that I talked to the player. The understanding was that if the player apologized to him, Vitt would consider the incident closed."

"I requested the player to call at the stadium the next day before reporting to the clubhouse. Without any solicitation on my part, the player said he realized he was wrong and agreed to make amends by apologizing to Vitt. He then went to the clubhouse and apologized."

"Since that was all Vitt requested, I can not construe this as a failure of the front office to support the manager."

The player obviously was outfielder Jeff Heath, although his name was not mentioned. Vitt reprimanded Heath late in the season for slow play on a ball and argument brought the suspension order.

Vitt's future status will be determined by the club's directors, who will meet in about three weeks.

Slapnicka said, "I wish to say that it was not a true statement of fact."

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

Just so that the arguments and the accusations aren't carried over until winter, we'll pen a paragraph or two about the lights that were turned off at that St. John-Kimberly high game not so long ago.

In the first place, the lights were only partially turned off by the grounds keeper who mistook the cheers of the crowd for a signal that the game was over.

In the second place, there was no ground gained at the time the lights were partially off for Referee Cliff Kemp is authority for the statement that he waited until they were turned on again before play was resumed.

The comments were all rather interesting while they lasted, however. Almost everyone who had anything to write or to say about the game had a different version of how long the lights were off, whether the ball was in play, and just what was the degree of darkness.

Lawrence college gridders play at four homecomings this season, and Coach Bernie Heslton is wondering whether some of the Midwest mentors picked his team because they wanted to be assured of a win or because the Vikes really are an attraction. This week Lawrence plays at Carleton for the Carl's homecoming. On Nov. 2 the squad is at Ripon for homecoming and on Nov. 9 at Beloit. The Lawrence homecoming, at which the Vikes are expected to be present, is Oct. 26 with Coe the opponent.

According to the boys who are promoting it, 180 persons have reservations on that Appleton train going to the Bear-Packer game in Chicago, Nov. 3.

That drop kick of Bob Osen's last Saturday really was a boot. He is credited with having stood on the 40 or 41 yard line when he let go. And the goal posts are 10 yards the other side of the goal line. That means his kick was good for 50 yards, more or less, and probably is a season's record.

Sports activities in Appleton and Kimberly are going to lose a big booster when the Rev. L. C. Smith of the Kimberly Presbyterian church leaves the village to take a pastorate at LaCrosse. He attended every village athletic contest and was a close follower of Lawrence sports. In the spring, if you wanted an official at a track meet you didn't have to look for the Rev. Mr. Smith. You were positive he'd be there and that he'd work and be keenly interested in each boy's effort, friend or foe.

Maurice Cain, Appleton high guard, lost seven pounds during the Sheboygan North game in the heat here ten days ago.

That National pro basketball league, which has drawn two schedules to date, may draw a third. First the loop had eight teams, then six and now indications are it will go to eight again.

Add reasons high school coaches can't win games: "My quarter back joined the army"—Coach Toby Emerson of Omro.

Michigan State college sports news service has issued a booklet about 1940 Spartan football facts. It might be just another booklet but it isn't for it tells you how to pronounce names like Dancu, Enconomopolous, Morabito, Radulescu and Sobkowsky.

Coach Mickey McCormick of St. Norbert still is plugging for games with state colleges. He recently talked to the DePere Lions and said he held out hopes a state college circuit soon would be formed.

Fond du Lac isn't so sure it wants to tie up with a major league team. The Panthers had a big season as an independent club and feel the fans may not "take" to a team they know is owned by someone else. The Panthers were fortunate last summer in that they picked up some pretty fair talent. Supposing they weren't so lucky, then what?

The passing of another football score guesser is duly recorded herewith: Dear "Master mind," Amen.

Your truly,
Dick Davis.

Chicago Gridders Seek 6-Man Title

Chicago —(AP)— The University of Chicago, as usual, is in a class by itself in football.

A year ago the Maroons were playing their last season of intercollegiate football although then they didn't know it. But they lost all their conference games by shut-outs.

Now they've turned to six-man football, becoming the first major educational institution to adopt the hybrid sport as a muscle-builder for students.

Six-man football is a comparatively new sport, designed primarily for small high schools which have neither the finances nor manpower to support the orthodox grid game.

A squad of 50 boys is working out daily at Chicago under the direction of Coach Kyle Anderson and two assistants. When the lads get a few kinks out of their joints the squad will be split into groups of 10 and a schedule of games drawn up in round-robin fashion. Then the teams will fight it out for the school title.

Parker Hall Stars as Pro

In Second Place as Ground Gainer and In Passing Efficiency

New York —(AP)—Parker Hall, who came out of Mississippi to become a pro football star in his first year with Cleveland last season, is on his way to the top again. National league statistics released yesterday show Hall has moved into second place in forward passing efficiency and ground gaining.

In yards gained his 132 total is second to "freshman" Banks McFadden of Brooklyn, with 215. Hall's passing average of 51.0, on 25 complete in 49 tries, makes him runner-up to veteran Sammy Baugh of the Washington Redskins, with 28 out of 49 for 700. Davey O'Brien of the Philadelphia Eagles, in third place, has thrown more than twice as many aerials as any other player, with 46 of 103 for 557 yards and a 44.6 percentage.

Don Looney, Eagles rookie, is the leading pass-receiver and tied for first place in scoring with Jimmy Johnston of the Redskins at 4 touchdowns each. Looney has caught 21 passes for 312 yards. Leading field goal kicker is Armand Niccolai of the Pittsburgh Steelers, who has booted four in eight attempts.

Iowa State Freshmen Work Marquette Plays

Ames, Iowa —(AP)—Freshmen gave the Iowa State football squad a glimpse yesterday of what it will face Friday night as the preps ran Marquette plays against the varsity with too much success for comfort. Royal Lohry and Bob Seaburg, quarterbacks, drilled on a variety of long and short passes, indicating that the Cyclones would "fight fire with fire."

Major Bob Neyland Changes Tennessee Offense With Shift

Knoxville, Tenn. —(AP)— After 14 winning years with the same solid offense, Major Bob Neyland has strengthened his power packed volleys of Tennessee with a tricky new shift. It's not of the dippy-doo variety, but is a deceptive new offensive element meshed smoothly into the Neyland system, which barred southern coaches know so well without being able to do much about it.

The 42,000 fans who watched the Vols roll over Duke last Saturday, 13-0, got a glimpse of the shift, the first departure Neyland has made from his orthodox attack since he became head coach here in 1926. But it was moulded into the old-style offense so adroitly that few sensed the change when it came. "I decided to adopt a shift when I felt our stuff was becoming too well-known," the one-time army officer said. "The shift broadens our attack and gives the other fellow something to worry about."

The Neyland system calls for a balanced line with a single-wing back and the No. 2 back at the heels of the center to the strong side. In the new shift, the strong-side tackle and end shift out a pace and the No. 2 back drops back into the orthodox single-wing, making a formation from which a variety of straight plays, reverses, spinners, double reverses and passes are possible.

Cincinnati Trying to Pick A Series Hero

It's Tough Job for Several Players Deserve the Honor

BY GATLE TALBOT

Cincinnati —(AP)— Headed by but happy after a night of spectacular celebration, Cincinnati's baseball fans came to slowly today, pinched themselves a few times, and finally awakened to the realization it was true—the Reds had won that old championship.

Yesir, those good old Reds had done it. Wheel! Old Paul Derringer, the people's choice, had licked Detroit's Buck Newsom, 2 to 1, in the seventh and deciding game, as tense and thrilling a battle as ever climaxed a world series.

Streets of the town still were littered with the paper and rubbish that showered down from ten thousand windows an instant after Earl Averill, a pinch-hitter, slapped a ball at Lonnie Frey and was snapped off at first for the final out of the long-drawn play-off yesterday afternoon at Crosley field.

Delirious Night
Those who witnessed both said it was the most delirious night Cincinnati had experienced since the Armistice was signed in 1918. The blow-off was all the greater after the terrible disappointment of a year ago, when the Reds clowned to their fourth straight defeat at the hands of the New York Yankees.

Today the proud celebrants had only one big problem on their minds—to name the hero of the series. And it was a real problem, at that.

Derringer? The big pitcher who produced one of his greatest masterpieces; didn't permit an earned run to one of baseball's finest array of sluggers in the clinching struggle?

Bucky Walters? The stout hurler who twice in the series stopped the Tigers with three-hit and five-hit performances when the Reds were trailing by a game and appeared to be on the verge of defeat?

Bill Werber? The scrapping third-baseman who led both clubs in hitting for the seven games with an average of .370 and whose fielding was spectacular?

Or even little Billy Myers, the shortstop, who clouted the long fly off Newsom in the seventh inning to score Jimmy Ripple from third with the Reds' second and winning run? Billy didn't do much before that, but in the view of Cincinnati fans he could have made up for a lifetime of lapses with that one vital blow.

Newsom a Hero, Too
Heroic in defeat was Buck Newsom, big, blustering Bobo, who pitched the Tigers to two stirring victories, blanking the Reds over one stretch of 16 consecutive innings, but on whom the terrific pace finally told at the very climax of the series.

After Bobo won his second game on Sunday, his arm was so sore he scarcely could lift it, and a masseur worked on it far into the night. He told Bobo he shouldn't try to pitch again for a long time. But out there yesterday was Bobo, firing them across with only one day's rest, and it wasn't until the seventh inning that Frank McCormick and Jimmy Ripple rattled the fences with successive doubles to start the rally that beat the big South Carolinian out of the third world series triumph he craved.

From a romantic standpoint, the grandest figure on the field for six of the seven games was Jimmy Wilson, the 40-year-old coach who pulled his ancient catcher's mitt off the bottom of his locker and filled the big shoes of crippled Ernie Lombardi behind the plate for the Reds.

laid down a perfect sacrifice in the Reds' winning inning, and stole the only base of the entire seven games.

For those interested in statistics and stuff, this was the first world series won by a National league club since the St. Louis Cards beat the Tigers in 1934. It was the third triumph for McKechnie over the American league this season, his National league all-stars having trimmed the American leaguers both in the spring game at Tampa and the mid-season fixture at St. Louis. And it had been a long week.

U. W. Starting Lineup Intact for Iowa Game

Madison —(AP)— Although several of its members are nursing injuries the Wisconsin football eleven which started against Marquette will be intact for the Iowa game at Iowa City Saturday.

Hadley Hoskins, left halfback, who has been resting an injured heel, may be ready for contact work today or tomorrow. Dave Schreiner, end, who has a knee injury, should be ready for active service at the same time. This pair staged a very effective passing of offense in the Marquette game.

The first string will take a look at Iowa formations today while the reserves will be drilled on fundamentals and pass defense. The Badgers will leave for Iowa City Friday morning.

Two reserves, Solie and Karras, sparked a drive in the fourth quarter for another marker. Karras tallied from the 10-yard line.

The starting lineup for Appleton showed J. Lueck, J. Groh, B. Dreier, R. Luebben, H. Horn, J. Gregorius, and S. Williams in the line. V. Barth, I. Kimball, D. Muser and H. Longking in the backfield. Reserves were Zuker, McCrory, Krueger and Hilgendorf, ends; Pashler, Heckert, Peotter and Pekarske, tackles; Brasch, Thomas and Parish, guards; Hatch and Van Dinter, centers; Solie, McGuire, Brinkman, Kamps, Karras and Bunks, backs.

The third quarter saw Appleton score from the 2-yard line with Kimball going over. The touchdown was set up by a blocked punt.

The championship was Ohio's first in 20 years. Cleveland winning in 1920, the year after Cincinnati defeated the Chicago Black Sox. Not since 1934 had the National league downed the American in the big series, but this year the senior leaguers won it along with both the all-star contests. The all-time world series standing now adds up to: American league 23, National league 14.

The American association club which thrives on "breaks" got one from the weatherman yesterday when rain forced postponement of the third game at Newark and gave 23-year-old Charlie Wagner, its star right-hand pitcher, an added day's rest.

Wagner, who has been nursing a sore finger, seeks his thirteenth straight victory tonight. Opposing him will be Steve Peek, another right-hander and the Bears' leading percentage hurler.

Roll Up 31 to 0 Win Over Rocket Reserves; Losers Never Threaten

Appleton High school Bee gridders went over to Neenah Monday and rolled up a 31 to 0 victory over the Red Rocket reserves. The losers never threatened.

Appleton took the opening kickoff and marched straight down the field with Kimball going over from the 6-yard line. A few minutes later Dreier recovered a Neenah fumble after a punt on Neenah's 20. Longings scored from the 4-yard line.

In the second period, Appleton was held on the 1-yard line. Neenah punted out but Longings brought the ball back to the 10 from where Kimball went over and then kicked the point to give Appleton a 19 to 0 lead.

The third quarter saw Appleton score from the 2-yard line with Kimball going over. The touchdown was set up by a blocked punt.

Two reserves, Solie and Karras, sparked a drive in the fourth quarter for another marker. Karras tallied from the 10-yard line.

The starting lineup for Appleton showed J. Lueck, J. Groh, B. Dreier, R. Luebben, H. Horn, J. Gregorius, and S. Williams in the line. V. Barth, I. Kimball, D. Muser and H. Longking in the backfield. Reserves were Zuker, McCrory, Krueger and Hilgendorf, ends; Pashler, Heckert, Peotter and Pekarske, tackles; Brasch, Thomas and Parish, guards; Hatch and Van Dinter, centers; Solie, McGuire, Brinkman, Kamps, Karras and Bunks, backs.

The championship was Ohio's first in 20 years. Cleveland winning in 1920, the year after Cincinnati defeated the Chicago Black Sox. Not since 1934 had the National league downed the American in the big series, but this year the senior leaguers won it along with both the all-star contests. The all-time world series standing now adds up to: American league 23, National league 14.

The American association club which thrives on "breaks" got one from the weatherman yesterday when rain forced postponement of the third game at Newark and gave 23-year-old Charlie Wagner, its star right-hand pitcher, an added day's rest.

Wagner, who has been nursing a sore finger, seeks his thirteenth straight victory tonight. Opposing him will be Steve Peek, another right-hander and the Bears' leading percentage hurler.

Now they've turned to six-man football, becoming the first major educational institution to adopt the hybrid sport as a muscle-builder for students.

Six-man football is a comparatively new sport, designed primarily for small high schools which have neither the finances nor manpower to support the orthodox grid game.

Weatherman Gives Louisville a Break

Newark, N. J. —(AP)— Louisville's "team of destiny," seeking its second straight little world series championship, ruled a slight favorite today to win the sixth game of the 1940 minor league baseball classic and pull up even with the Newark Bears of the International league.

Wilbur Van Green Bay, has won three championships at Green Bay. He will meet Dick Lancette, St. Paul, who won the northwest gold glove championship last year, in one of the preliminary bouts. Red LeVass has been barred from further competition as an amateur in Michigan because he has won three golden glove titles. He will meet Matt Miholnich, Milwaukee, another golden glove champion, in the opener.

Archie LeMay, Neenah, is anxious to make a creditable showing before the home audience. He is a better fighter than his record shows as he never had a suitable place to train. He has been training for this bout at St. Paul. His opponent will be Billy Pierce, West Allis, runner-up in the Milwaukee golden glove tournament last year.

Roszina Now a Pro
Johnny Roszina, Milwaukee, is another golden glove champion who will appear in a four round contest. Norb Gerarden, Green Bay, who has been doing most of his recent fighting on the west coast, will be his opponent.

The contestants in the windup and semiwindup are several years removed from golden glove competition. Frankie Gaudes, Milwaukee, will box Billy Miller, Chicago Negro, in the wind-up. Gaudes comes from a fighting family of five brothers. He has knocked out 12 of his 15 opponents. His opponent has boxed such men as Kid Bruno, Lucias Fleet, Eddie Landers, Eddie Cleary and Jimmy Webster and has won 20 of his 25 professional fights.

Emmett Weller, who boxes Indian Billy Lee in the six round semi, scored 12 knockouts as an amateur. As a professional he has scored 12 knockouts and won five decisions. A cut eye resulted in a technical knockout for the St. Paul boxer at Milwaukee. Indian Billy Lee has been boxing 10 years although he is only 28. He injured his hand when boxing Baby Face Brees at Milwaukee and has been out of action since then.

Connie Mack Berry to Join New York Pros

Kenosha—(P)—Connie Mack Berry has been given his release by the Kenosha Cardinals so he can accept an offer to play with the New York Yankees in the American Pro league.
Berry, former North Carolina State end who began the season with the Green Bay Packers, announced that at the close of football he would join the Oshkosh All-Star basketball team.

Don't Shoot Strange Game Birds, Hunters are Warned

Madison—Wisconsin hunters are today asked by the conservation department to refrain from shooting strange game birds during the open season because the prospect is that the birds will be chukar partridges on which there is no season.
The department is hopeful that the chukar partridge population can be brought to a point where it can rival the pheasant in hunter appeal but declares that absolute protection of the new birds is necessary for the present.

A total of 10,663 chukar partridges are being stocked in the state this year with evidence of heavy survival in some areas from past stocking efforts.
The department cautioned hunters against mistaking chukars for Hungarian partridges in the counties where the season on the latter birds will be open Oct. 19 to Nov. 3. Hunters are apt to find both chukars and Huns in Sheboygan, Dodge, Washington, Ozaukee, Dane,

Detroit Wishes to Return; Toledo May Become Eighth Team

Oshkosh — With pressure having been brought to bear on officials of the National Basketball league from Detroit sources, a meeting of representatives of teams in the league is being held in Chicago to reconsider the application of the Detroit Eagles for a franchise in the circuit and the loop may again operate as an eight-team wheel instead of with six teams as was planned at a recent meeting.

The main reason for Detroit dropping from the league after it had made a favorable impression during its first season in the 1939-40 campaign was that it was believed the armory, where games in the motor city were played, would not be available.

It has been found, however, that with the national guard units being called into training and sent to southern camps the armory in Detroit will be available and the Detroit management is demanding that its team be reinstated.

May Admit Toledo
If Detroit is returned to the league an application for a franchise from Toledo, which team has the noted Chuckovits of Toledo U. on its roster, may be accepted also to round out an eight-team league. If this action is taken then Detroit and Toledo will be placed in the Eastern division along with the Akron Firestones, champions for the past two years, and the Akron, O., Goodyears, champions the year before.

Hammond, Ind. now in the Eastern division in a six-team league setup, would be returned to the Western division along with Oshkosh, Sheboygan Redskins and the Chicago Bruins.

Practice sessions for the Oshkosh All Stars will begin at the new South Park school gymnasium Tuesday evening, Oct. 15.

Big Ten Sees Closest Race In Its History

With Chicago Out, There Isn't a Week Team in the Circuit

Chicago —(P)—The Western conference appears headed for its greatest competitive football season in a decade, one which could become the greatest gridiron campaign in Big Ten history.

With Chicago out of the picture, there doesn't seem to be a pushover in the field—one which even this early in the year presents such standouts as Ohio State, Michigan, Minnesota and Northwestern.

And with the other teams likely to contribute occasional upsets, the 1940 season may match or even surpass those stirring 1930 and 1931 campaigns, when Northwestern, Michigan and Purdue engaged in thrill-packed battle royals which saw Northwestern and Michigan tie for the crown in 1930 and those schools and Purdue deadlock for the 1931 championship.

For all-around strength, the conference apparently has bobbed up with a natural this season. Ohio State routed Pittsburgh and was expected to have little trouble last Saturday with Purdue, but the conference champions squeezed through 17 to 14 on a last minute field goal as the Boiler-makers showed surprising power.

Wildcats Rolled
Michigan, a pre-season favorite with Ohio State, overwhelmed California 41 to 0, then came back to trip a tough Michigan State team, 21 to 14. Minnesota, conceded to have only a fair team before the season opened, whipped Washington 19 to 14 and then defeated Nebraska last Saturday, 13 to 7. Northwestern, reportedly weak in its forward wall and of unknown offense.

Don't Be Surprised If The Reds Present A Changed Lineup In '41

BY JOHN FRYE
Cincinnati—(P)—The Cincinnati Reds have won the National league pennant for two straight years—but they're not standing pat!
Frank C. Lane, director of the Reds' nine-club farm system, has a flock of youngsters coming up for trials next spring. Some of them probably will be regulars with the Reds next season. Others will be available for call at any time.

Frank would like nothing better than to discover a better pitcher than Paul Derringer or Bucky Walters, a better first baseman than Frank McCormick, or a better catcher than Ernie Lombardi.

NOT that he wants to put these able gentlemen out of jobs, but they know as well as Frank that some day old man time will put the clutch on them.

Knows 'Em All
Frank has all the facts and figures on his scores of charges between his ears. Break the tall curly head out of a sound sleep and he'll say without turning on the light, "Dick West at Indianapolis—Jewell Ens says he's going to be a catcher—he's coming up again next year."

He's hard, like a catcher ought to be. "We're getting Al Mele from Birmingham—outfielder—left handed—hitting 340 and batted in 116 runs so far."

"The apple of our eye down there, though, is Chuck Aleno—third baseman—22 years old—six foot one—200-pounder—scoop shovel hands and what an arm—hitting .325. Ask what in heaven's name the Reds need with a third baseman, with Bill Werber the best in the league and Lew Riggs ready to step in anyway, and you'll hear: "It's nice to know we've got him, though."

"Then Garton del Savio—shortstop—hitting 280, knocked in 65 runs—also from Birmingham. "We're recalling Kermit Lewis from Albany in the Eastern—outfielder—batting .329—stole 20 bases—but 15 homers—built like Chick Hefey."

"Woody Williams from Louisville—he may be our hitting shortstop. Frank Secory—outfielder from Beaumont in the Texas—good guy. "Joe Mack—first baseman—Red Barrett—pitcher—Don Lang—third base—bail from Indianapolis—Neil Clifford—catcher from St. Paul. . .

"I tell you, the competition's going to be stiff down in Tampa next spring."

Frank is pretty proud of the farm teams this year. Bassett, Va., won the Bi-State pennant. Tucson, the team in the Arizona-Texas that the Reds picked up for $500, won the second half down there.

Ogden in the Pioneer league, Durham in the Piedmont and Le-noir, N. C., in the Tar Heel, all went into final playoff series in their respective loops.

Marquette Scrimmages For Iowa State Game

Milwaukee —(P)—Game Captain Steve Seskowski led the Marquette football varsity in a hard scrimmage yesterday preparatory to the night game Friday with Iowa State. Blocking and timing were stressed.

Several first stringers were held out of contact work as a result of injuries received in the Wisconsin game. The American Legion and Milwaukee industrialists are sponsoring the game with Iowa State. 7-0 victors last week over Kansas in the Big Six conference.

Oshkosh Meets For Discussion Of Class D Ball

Hope to Sound Out Sentiment, Attend State Loop Meeting

Oshkosh — The possibility of Oshkosh becoming a member of the Wisconsin State Baseball league, Class D circuit which enjoyed its first season this year, has finally gone beyond the stage of wishful thinking with the calling of a meeting for Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Hotel Athearn.

An invitation has gone out to all persons in the city and this vicinity interested in baseball to attend the meeting and get the "lowdown" on the possibility of Oshkosh returning to organized baseball to enjoy some of the spotlight it held in the national pastime about a quarter-century ago back in the old Wisconsin-Illinois league days.

Officials of the Fond du Lac club have volunteered to be in attendance at the meeting and explain what was done in Fond du Lac to make it possible for that city to enter a team in the league, which team, incidentally, finished second in the league race and drew as high as 6,000 people to some games.

Dr. H. A. Devine, president of the Fond du Lac team, and E. J. Wenzlaff, vice president and business manager, and others of that city will be among those who will attend Wednesday's meeting here to aid Oshkosh in getting the ball rolling.

From Fox Valley

Four of the six teams in the league this season are from the Fox river valley and are said to be interested in having Oshkosh as an additional member when the league is expanded to eight teams for the 1941 season.

A meeting of the league is to be held at the Hotel Northland, Green Bay, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock and it will be necessary for league officials at that time to know whether or not Oshkosh is seriously interested in applying for a franchise.

Prep Gridders Invited to See Packers, Rams

Charley Schultz and Joe Laws Won't be In Green Bay Lineup

Green Bay — When the Green Bay Packers meet the Cleveland Rams at City stadium here next Sunday afternoon scores of Wisconsin and upper Michigan high school football players will be in the stands to see what the professional footballers look like in action.

High school Day is an annual event at Green Bay and by special arrangement with the Packer Football corporation all high school coaches and their squads are invited to attend at a straight admission of 55 cents each. Assistant coaches are included in the invitation and all that is necessary is for one of the coaches, or some other authorized representative of the school, to accompany the squad.

Many Prize Recruits
The high school players and the other thousands who witness the clash will see some of the prize rookies of last year's college teams who have turned to the post-graduate gridiron this season. This is true of both "pro" clubs. In the Rams lineup will be Ole Cordill, a 200-pound flyer who ended his college career after shining with Rice Institute three years and got his first taste of professional competition when he played with the All-Stars against the Packers this fall. Clarence Gehrke, fresh from the University of Utah and winner of All-America halfback honors, and Mike Kinek, a Michigan State end and another All Star of this year.

For this game the Packers will be without the services of the injured veterans Charles Schultz, big tackle from Minnesota, and Joe Laws, the Packers able field general and former Iowa star, but new recruits are being groomed to take their places and will see a lot of service.

Gopher Triple Threat
In the emergency Hal Van Every, the triple threat Minnesota back who is rapidly fitting into the fast-stepping style of the "pro" league, Ray Riddick, a six-foot 225-pound end from Fordham, Lou Brock, a powerful back from Purdue whose port-side passing has made a hit with Coach E. L. Lambeau. Dick Evans, one of Iowa's 1939 "iron men," is coming along nicely at a wing position while "Smiley" Johnson, the Georgia husky, is going great guns as a center flanker.

It is possible that Leo Disend, the tackle secured from Brooklyn, will make his Packer debut. The new lineman was a three-sport star at Albright college in Pennsylvania before joining the Dodgers in 1938. He tips the beam at 224 pounds and is a pretty tough customer out there on the forward wall.

Carleton Pointing For Lawrence Battle
Northfield Minn.—Carleton college gridmen, still undefeated but tied, pointed today for their homecoming game here next Saturday with Lawrence college of Appleton, Wis. Expected to be one of the day's stand-out games in the Northwest, the tussle will start at 2 p. m. on Laird field.

Last year the Carls were Lawrence's homecoming opponents and bowed unexpectedly, 18-8, to the Wisconsin team.

Coaches Wally Hass and Gus Young found little cause for joy in the 7-7 tie game which Carleton played at Monmouth last Saturday. The Carls were in scoring territory often enough but couldn't seem to insert the needed touchdown punch in their plays.

Pennock Follows Evans As Boston Farm Head
Boston—(U)—Billy Evans, director of the Boston Red Sox farm system for the past five years, served his connection with the organization yesterday, according to an announcement by officials of the club.

He will be succeeded by Herb Pennock, one of the greatest left-handed pitchers in baseball history, who has been serving as assistant director of the farm clubs since the middle of the 1939 season.

Red Devil players were Don Kloes, Bill Sherry, J. Christensen, E. Gregorius, B. Schommer, L. Fentor, Manigan, Trader, B. Lahn, Pennings and Poplka. Pirate gridders were Eastman, Van Rossum, V. Bessitt, Don Kamps, DeNoble, G. Kamps, T. Kamps, B. Donovan, R. Derfus, J. Mullen and L. Kaufman.

Red Devils and Pierce Park Pirates fought to a 7-7 deadlock in a football tilt last Saturday. Pirates scored in the second quarter on a blocked kick and a 25-yard march while the Red Devils counted in the third period on a 60-yard march sparked by Roger Poplka and Robert Trader.

America May Face Problem of Helping British Hold Singapore

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—A well-informed view on the inside here is that Japan is pointing to get Singapore. All other questions are seen as side issues, or stepping stones to that goal. The second point is that grave doubt exists whether Britain, alone, will be able to hold Singapore.

There, in a few words, is the core of the far eastern situation according to some informed judgment here.

There are other issues. Economics appear large in the far eastern question—sources of supply for Japan, markets for her silk, and our sources of rubber, tin and other critical items. China is a big issue and other crisis is coming over the Burma road, which the British propose to reopen Oct. 18. This is the one remaining supply line into China. Britain and China are the only two nations left who are opposing with arms the axis powers. The United States expressed its regret when the Burma road was closed some months ago as a British attempt to appease Japan, and Washington favors reopening it now. The situation, now rapidly advancing toward the deadline, is filled with dynamite.

But eventually, by whatever road, we come back to Singapore. Without it, Japan can never feel secure about her expansion in the Far East—just as some day she probably will try to do something about Vladivostok, which in Russian hands stands as a menace to her. Holding Singapore, Japan would be in command of the most important key in southeastern Asia, and other difficulties would tend to melt. Singapore controls the South China sea.

A naval power free to use its fleet based on Singapore would dominate the East Indies, the Philippines, Australia and New Zealand, and would control one of the great ocean crossroads and trade routes of the world. It is a mighty prize in both a military and a commercial sense. That's why the British got there first. When Singapore goes, the white man is through in the Far East and one of the world's chief highways of commerce goes under the control of Tokyo. No wonder the Japanese are aiming for it.

Embargoes May Not Be Enough To Check Japan
Japan might be checked or slowed down by embargoes. But there is a question whether these will be applied quickly enough or could be made severe enough to decide the issue. Some think it possible. Some believe Japan is so anxious to avoid war that economic measures would be sufficient. Others answer that if the economic measures were strong enough to smother Japan, she would fight rather than submit to them. Once she held Singapore, she would not need to fear economic measures. Thus it is that some here argue that there is in the making a showdown over Singapore.

The base is heavily fortified. But it is not self-supporting. A base is to a navy what a garage is to the automobile, supplies and machinery must be shipped in to Singapore. Possibly the base could withstand a considerable siege. But with the British unable to divert much navy to the Far East just now, help would have to come from elsewhere. Elsewhere means the United States.

So we are facing a decision whether to let the Far East go, let Japan take Singapore and take control of that part of the world, or whether to go in and try to hold it. Public opinion will have its part in answering this question. It is a fateful decision. We may be presented, as was Britain over Czechoslovakia, with the choice of submitting to a bloodless defeat or of fighting for something that seems far away and of only remote concern, all the while leaving ourselves exposed in the Atlantic.

Britain submitted to a succession of retreats, hoping that Hitler would be satisfied and that the two systems of life could exist side by side. It did not work and Britain finally had to fight. Some in our government feel that we are in the same predicament now, and that the hard decision may have to be made sooner than we think.

Small Mammals Subject Of Study for This Month

BY CLARA HUSSONG

Moles, voles, lemmings and other small mammals were to be the subject of study for the month of October, according to the outline given at the beginning of the year on the less familiar forms of wildlife found in the state.

Most of us, when we encounter any of these small forms of animal life in garden, wood or field, call them "mice," and it is true that voles and lemmings belong to the rat and mouse tribe, but moles and shrews form a different order. Nearly all are night travelers and night workers spending their days in underground tunnels, hollow trees, logs or wherever their homes happen to be.

Moles and shrews are insect eaters, the moles digging for their food underground and shrews feeding on insect pests above ground. Both have small eyes and ears, the eyes of moles being only about the size of a pin-head and although not entirely blind, they are said to be able to distinguish only strong light from darkness.

Shrews Find Homes
From the tips of their long pointy noses to the ends of their tails, shrews measure only about four inches. They are our smallest mammals. They are thickly-furred, the color of the fur on the back varying in different species from a lead-gray to seal-brown.

Shrews make their homes in sheltered places such as hollow logs, wood piles, or in a cavity at the foot of a tree. They do not burrow but often enter the burrows of moles and mice in search of food. Although their food is principally insects, they have been known to feed on dead birds, scraps of meat and even other mammals including their own kind. For their size they are very ferocious and can frighten away rodents much larger than themselves.

Moles are larger than shrews, measuring about six or seven inches from the tip of nose to tip of tail. They are smoky brown in color and their fore legs and fore paws are large and powerful. Most of their life is spent underground, digging tunnels which may be only a few inches below the surface or as much as four feet deep. They have been known to dig a 75 yard tunnel in a single night.

This digging is not done for pleasure but it is the mole's method of hunting for food. Cutworms, wireworms and ground-infesting larvae of flying insects are on their diet and although they may annoy us by leaving mole-hills in our gardens and lawns, they do us a good service by destroying insect pests.

The star-nosed mole is one of the common species found in the state. It is so named because the tip of its nose is adorned with a star-shaped, fleshy projection. This species is usually found near running streams. In winter moles burrow deeper, to get below the line of frozen earth, and continue digging and hunting.

Vole and lemming are names given to several of our field and wood mice. The red-backed vole or mouse is found in heavy swamps or in fields bordering low woods. The broad rufous stripe extending from the back of the head to the rump gives it its name. It makes its home in decaying logs, under stumps or in underground cavities. Grain, seeds or wild plants and nuts form its food.

The meadow vole is our common field mouse, probably better known than any of the other mammals I am describing here. Their nests are usually above ground, in bunches of grass, which they line with milkweed or cat-tail "feathers." Even in winter they remain abroad, traveling in runways in the snow banks, or scampering over a snow crust. In summer they feed on leaves and roots of plants and in autumn and winter they live on grain and wild seeds.

Lemmings Are Smaller
Lemming mice are somewhat smaller than field mice and may be found in swamps and bogs. Their nests have been found under rocks, fallen logs and in the mossy cavities of old stumps. They live principally on the roots and leaves of various plants.

The white-footed deer mouse can be looked for in deep woods. Its fawn-colored back, large ears, bright eyes and white underparts make it so attractive that it hardly deserves to be classed with the rest of the family. It nests in hollow logs and stumps, or in convenient cavities of old log buildings. In summer it builds an outside nest, just as squirrels do. The nest may be in a tangle of vines or shrubbery. Walking along a stump fence recently I found several of these nests among the gnarled, inverted roots.

Wild seeds and nuts are eaten by the deer mouse and in autumn it often lives for a time in cornfields where it feeds on corn. Some food is laid up for the winter but most of it is picked up day by day. The jumping meadow mouse is the only member of the group who hibernates through the winter. This is a long-tailed species whose powerful hind legs enable it to travel in leaps of 10 feet or more.

Could Make 5 Clubs but Not '3 No'

Last Wednesday's Questions
Question 4: The bidding, North-South vulnerable, was:

North East South West
1 heart 4 spades Pass Pass

You are South and hold:

♠ 63 ♥ J 7 5 4 2 ♦ Q J 10 ♣ 8 4
What card do you select as your opening lead?

Answer: The correct opening lead is the diamond queen. It is fairly certain that your opening lead will be the last lead you are able to make on this hand, hence you should use it to strike the best blow for your side. With five hearts in your hand, it is extremely unlikely that a heart lead can do any good, since one of the opponents is almost sure to have a singleton heart. If your partner has strength in clubs it can scarcely be blocked out, but if the opponents have the clubs it may be vital to establish diamond tricks from the go. (If you led the heart jack, take 20 points; the heart four, 10 points; club jack, 35 points; club eight or four, 25 points; a spade, 40 points.)

Question 5: Neither side vulnerable. The bidding proceeds:

North East South West
2 clubs Pass ?

You are South and hold:

♠ Q J 8 7 5 4 3 2 ♥ 8 ♦ Q 5 ♣ 9 4

What call do you make?

Answer: Two no trump. Despite your eight card spade suit, your first duty is to tell North that you do not hold an honor trick. Later you should bid spades very strongly. (If you answered two spades, take 20 points; one spade, 40 points; any other response, 40 points.)

The bidding:

2 clubs Pass 2 no trump Pass

3 clubs Pass 3 no trump Pass

5 clubs Pass Pass Pass Pass

Three no trump would have been a better contract but, strangely enough, could not be made against the best defense, whereas the less sound contract of five clubs could. East's failure to double was a model of caution.

West led the jack of diamonds and declarer gained the lead on the second round of that suit. The second high club revealed the sad news about the trump suit, but, undaunted by this blow, declarer ran his three spades and cashed the ace of hearts, after which he threw East in with a low heart.

When East returned a diamond, South trumped with the six, and overtrumped in dummy with the seven. The good spade was led, on which East had the sad choice between ruffing, which would give South the rest of the tricks at once, and discarding, which would permit South to discard the heart and lead from dummy at the twelfth trick to pick up the trumps.

THE HOME GARDENER

by EDWIN H. PERKINS

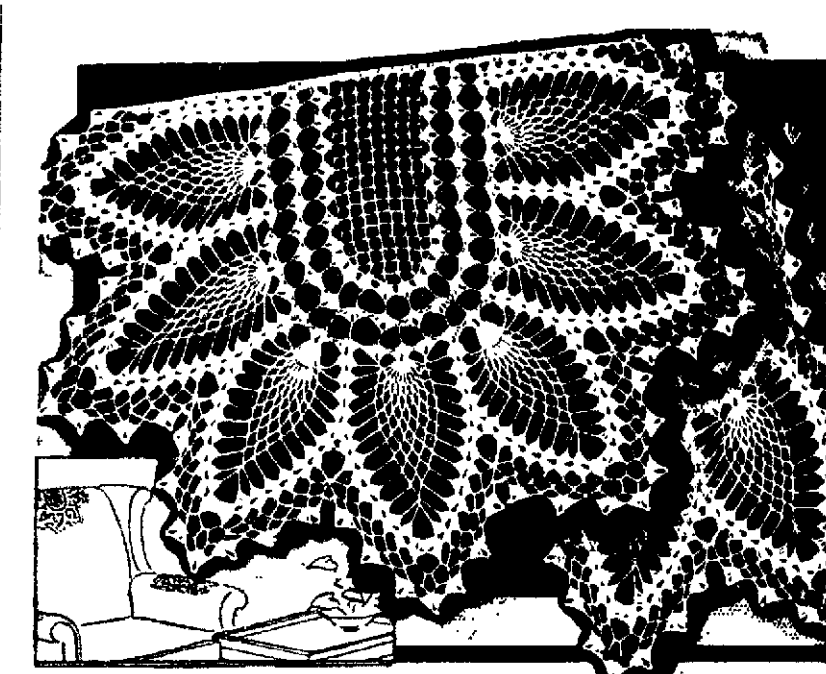

Along with the rearrangement of perennials in the family garden, quite a few persons are interested in moving trees. Many spruces and kindred sorts were planted ten or more years ago. Now the trees are encroaching too much on the limited garden space. What to do about it seems to be the question at the minute.

Perhaps the best advice is to move larger trees is, "Do not attempt it." This, for the reason that few persons have the proper facilities for performing the job.

In order to move a fair sized tree, one must have great skill in digging and burrowing the ball so as to get a sufficient number of roots to maintain good functioning until the tree can reestablish itself in its new home. Then there must be a runway and planks and many other gadgets at hand to pull one out of an emergency.

If the tree is not too large and

Case Records of a Psychologist

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

Love is not eternal and symbolic of perpetual motion. It is as fragile as a flower and requires daily nourishment in the form of compliments. The high rate of divorce in this country shows that it cannot endure of itself, but needs continued cultivation. People who think they can coast on the momentum of courtship love, coast right in the divorce court. It takes a lot of hard work and intelligent planning to keep a love affair flourishing till the Golden Wedding anniversary.

CASE R-193: Rosalind R., aged 23, is engaged to be married. "I was bridesmaid at the wedding of my dearest friend last week," she announced. "The clergyman gave a beautiful little address about love and marriage after the ceremony was over. He said that love was eternal and never perished. I thought it was wonderful. But I wonder if it is true that love really never dies. What do you think, Dr. Crane?"

Dr. Crane was sentimental about the eternal aspect of love, but didn't let them delude you regarding its real nature.

Love dies, as anybody with common sense will realize. If it were not so, why would nearly 20 per cent of our marriages end in the divorce courts in short order?

On their wedding day those young brides and grooms are just as ardently in love as the other 80 per cent who survive divorce. They are just as devoted to one another, and expect to live happily ever afterwards.

But they don't, for love is based on habits, just as much as piano playing. If you don't go through both sets of habits regularly, you grow rusty at the keyboard, and you likewise begin to see your romance fade away.

Love Insurance. Time and again I have assured you that a romance is simply a mutual admiration society with two charter members. They pat each other on the back, both literally and figuratively. Compliments breed compliments.

But criticism also breeds criticism. If you wish to win a person's friendship and love, pay frequent compliments.

If you wish to hold his or her love, keep the process up—not just during the courtship and honeymoon, but permanently. People never get a divorce from those who think they are wonderful. Who dote on every word the other person says.

Who laugh at his jokes or are so enamored of her lovely skin and enticing mouth that they cannot refrain from kissing both.

If you want to see how to insure your permanent marital happiness,

Waxed paper used freely will save a lot of dish washing. Use a heavy lined or two sheets of the lighter type. Put them on tables to hold sweets hardened in buttered pans.

A carving knife with an eight-inch blade can be used on a turkey, but a nine-inch blade is better. Whatever the length of the blade, it should be very sharp.

If fondant gets hard and crumbly during kneading break off small pieces at a time and work them in individually. The fondant may also be covered with a damp cloth and then kneaded with the hands.

Stubborn rust stains sometimes can be removed by boiling the article for 10 minutes in a quart of water containing two tablespoons of cream of tartar, then rinsing thoroughly in cold water.

The gardener feels he has sufficient ability to move it, it is recommended that even this be delayed until winter freezes arrive when the tree can be moved by the frozen ball method. For this method, first determine the size of the ball needed to support the tree, then chop the surrounding soil away. Using a sharp spade undercut the frozen ball, then lift the whole and set into a new hole which was dug before the ground froze. Fill in with unfrozen soil.

Beauty and You

By Patricia Lindsay

Today old and young females are going to get a piece of some feminine characteristics which men are supposed to condone or forgive, simply because it is the gentlemanly thing to do! I'm referring to selfishness, ungratefulness, gold-digging, cattiness and similar hard-hearted traits which some women consider smart.

If women expect men to be chivalrous and attentive, to treat them with kindness and generosity, they must be gracious in manner and grateful for favors bestowed.

These days are hard for all men. Business problems are general, the war is an eminent challenge, taxes are higher and gloom is like a fog over the whole country. To keep a sane balance men seek pleasure (as do women) and if they invite you to share their pleasure and you accept, you should at least voice your appreciation and be a pleasing companion by being well groomed, sympathetic, understanding and as gay as possible.

For Young Girls

If you were a man and invited a girl to dine and dance one evening and she accepted, and you called for her and took her to as nice a place as your budget could stand, wouldn't you expect her to look as attractive as possible (to prime your ego), to act graciously and to thank you for a pleasant evening when you escorted her home? Of course you would! But alas, many girls do not measure up to this accepted standard of good behavior.

Instead girls are not about "taking a fellow for a ride." They accept his invitation, insist upon going to a more expensive place than the man had anticipated, they chat at great length about other admirers, and they are so utterly selfish that they in no way attempt to be charming or entertaining. When

Lovers Who Satisfy

Lovers who satisfy are those who know that love requires constant nourishment, just as does a flower. You cannot water a rose sporadically and expect it to blossom radiantly and profusely. You must tend it EVERY DAY.

Compliment your mate EVERY DAY, for love is absolutely based on compliments. It blossoms profusely on this treatment and soon withers away without them. "Compliment," therefore, is the most powerful word in our language, for love depends upon it, and dies without it.

Satisfy a man's food appetite and his sex appetite. You'll rarely need worry about divorce thereafter. But three other appetites are essential to perfect conjugal bliss.

They are the parental hunger, social hunger, and religious or cultural hunger. In addition to food and love, give your mate children, friends and social recreation, plus the ennobling feeling of leading a constructive life, and nothing short of death can part you.

Child Strikes Back

"I suppose I screamed back. Then she shook me and slapped me and I slapped her back. I shouldn't have done it but I did."

"No, you shouldn't have done that. Nobody slaps his mother."

"Was it right of her to destroy a book? Especially a borrowed book? How do I feel? What'll my friend think when I tell her?"

"You won't tell her. You don't tell tales out of school. You'll get a copy of the book and return that and, if necessary, you say the first one met with an accident."

"Huh. You think my mother was right? And I was all wrong?"

Both in the Wrong

"No. You were wrong when you did not do what your mother asked you to do promptly. Or explain. She was wrong when she destroyed the book and slapped you. You were worse when you slapped her. Two wrongs on your score. A double. You're the youngest, and more in the wrong so you just forget your anger and tell your mother you were to blame. Leave the rest to her. She's very good to you. Nobody else would ever do for you what she does, you know."

"Nobody else would destroy—"

"You forget that. Your mother is young, too. You'll both grow older and wiser and you'd better begin today. Got any money with you?"

"Yes. A quarter."

"Well, you go and buy a flower with it and take it to your mother and see what she says to you. And don't worry about the book. She'll take care of it."

Attach several large spoons to stout threads or cords and give to the patient to play with the kitten. Older Women at Fault

As a woman grows older and trials and tribulations pile up, she is likely to grow sarcastic, selfish and cattily unless she consciously makes an effort to hold onto herself. There is nothing as appalling as a disillusioned woman who bores her friends with cattily remarks about others, who cannot be unselfish, and who acts as if all men owe all women generous attention. They take the attitude that "men are to be used"—men should be nice to them no matter what their behavior.

Of course, I realize that some men are hopelessly spoiled but if a woman accepts an invitation or favors from even a spoiled man she should be gracious to him. Most men respond like darlings to a little flattery, a little gaiety and pleasing feminine manners. And it pays a woman to acquire pleasing manners for she is infinitely more attractive and desired than the type of women we described above.

Let's make an effort to inspire the best in men. And let's try to help the men we love through this gloomy period of history. Keep yourself attractive, radiate charm, vitality and be gracious. I'll miss my guess if your man doesn't respond by being most thoughtful of you!

"What happened after you were told to set the table? Did you set it?"

"Not yet. I knew there was plenty of time so I was finishing the chapter. All of a sudden mother grabbed the book and threw it into the incinerator and began screaming at me."

CAVE ARTISTS

Yesterday we spoke of the many pictures in the French cave known as Font-de-Gaume. That is a famous Stone Age art gallery, but it is not the only place where such work was done. Southern France and northern Spain have several other caves which contain good paintings and engravings.

Pictures of bison, bears, deer, mammoths, ibexes, wild oxen, lions, foxes and birds are among those found in caves. Some of the animals painted—like the lions, mammoths and bison—are no longer to be found running wild in Europe.

Yet their bones have been found in France, Spain and other countries.

In one cave is an excellent picture of a wild boar. A modern artist might draw a better wild boar on paper, but he would find it hard to do so while working on a cave wall.

Some Stone Age paintings were made in three or four colors, and we may wonder how the artists obtained paint. This question has been studied, and we know certain facts which answer it. Tests of the paints used have proved that they came mainly from colored earth of one kind or another. Red was a favorite color of the cave artists. They also worked with yellow, black, brown and other paints.

The artists were able to obtain a fine powder, it was mixed with oil taken from animal fat. The result was paint with a long life. Some cave paintings (but not all of them) have colors which show brightly to this day. Others are very dull.

Powdered charcoal and soot went into the making of black paint. A few "paint tubes" of Stone Age times have been found in caves. These usually were hollow bones, such as the legbone of a deer. Traces of paint are to be seen today in certain of these tubes. It appears that the artists also stored paints in clam shells and oyster shells.

(For General Interest section of your scrapbook.) If you want a free copy of the illustrated leaflet on the "Seven Wonders of the World" send me a 3c stamped, self-addressed envelope in care of this newspaper.

Uncle Ray

Why did Stone Age artists make pictures on the walls of caves? Tomorrow we shall take up possible answers to that hard question. We shall also have a bit to say about the lighting inside caves.

Visiting Nurse Association Launches Finance Campaign

Neenah—The Neenah-Menasha Visiting Nurse association formally opened its annual drive for a budget of $7,888 today. The financial campaign which runs for one week, Oct. 9 to Oct. 16, is conducted each fall to raise funds for the VNA work during the ensuing year.

The annual meeting of the association held this morning, was featured by annual reports and election of directors. The complete budget has been set at $10,088, with $2,200 deducted because that amount is the estimated receipts from patient fees and insurance companies such as Santa benefit, Women's Benefit and a New York company.

New directors named by the association this morning are Mrs. H. A. Du Bois, Mrs. George Forkin, Mrs. A. C. Haselow, Mrs. C. A. Peerenboom, Mrs. Chester Shepard, Mrs. I. J. Stafford, Mrs. O. T. Thompson, Mrs. Donald Snyder, Mrs. Donald Snyder and Mrs. R. G. Whaley.

The budget of $7,888 to be raised by private subscription will be used for salaries of four staff nurses, maintenance of automobiles, nursing supplies, health centers, dental clinics, laundry, telephone, printing and postage, compensation insurance, national organization dues, convention expenses, new equipment and office supplies. The rent previously paid Theda Clark hospital will now be applied on maintenance of the new headquarters.

The VNA slogan, "Help Us to Help Others" is being used again during the 1940 campaign.

Federal Food Stamp Plan Is Given Approval

Charles Pope Will Succeed Draheim as 2nd Ward Supervisor

Neenah—The city council unanimously but unofficially gave Neenah's approval for application for the federal food stamp plan by Winnebago county at a special meeting last night at the city hall.

The council confirmed Mayor Edwin A. Kalfahs' appointment of Charles Pope, former supervisor, to succeed William A. Draheim as Second ward representative to the Winnebago county board.

Draheim, who is a major in the Wisconsin National Guard, submitted his resignation at the last council meeting. He resigned from the county board because he is leaving soon for a year's military training.

Because action on the federal food stamp plan wasn't stipulated in the "call" for the special meeting, the aldermen's approval wasn't official, but it was agreed that official action would be taken at the next regular meeting.

Mayor Kalfahs, who attended a meeting Monday night at Oshkosh, reported that county officials asked for an expression from the Neenah council so that action on the application could be started as soon as possible.

Unity Required

The mayor explained the plan to the aldermen, and he pointed out that all county units must accept the plan or it wouldn't be granted to the rest of the county, and after the plan is in effect, if one unit, such as Neenah, decided to abandon the plan, the entire county would have to do so after a 10-day notice.

A county committee of nine men, consisting of the chairman and three members of the county board, Mayor Kalfahs and William Jensen, Menasha, and the Oshkosh mayor and two aldermen, will make the necessary arrangements for the plan, subject to council approval.

Alderman Carl Loehning raised the question of whether the plan would increase Neenah's relief cost. He explained that Neenah's minimum for each person a week is $1.50 while the federal government's minimum is $1.50.

Earl DeLong Heads Young People's Group At St. Thomas Church

Neenah—Officers and committees of the Young People's Fellowship of St. Thomas Episcopal church were chosen Sunday morning as the Fellowship opened its 1940-41 season with corporate communion services at 8 o'clock, a breakfast and meeting in the parish house.

Earl DeLong has been named president, Don Grode, vice president; Mildred Grode, secretary, and Bill Grode, treasurer. The fellowship committee includes Susan Spengler, chairman; Betty DeLong, Tom Steinfert, Ed Calder and Beatrice Schuyler; knowledge committee, Barbara Clinton, chairman, Tom Calder and Joyce Bailer; worship committee, Janet Rike, chairman; Bill Dresser and John Steinfert; service committee, Margaret Hess, chairman, Letha Herrbold and Betty Yaley.

Jay Football Team to Seek First Victory

Truckers Also Seek Their First Triumph In Contest Friday

Neenah—Still gunning for their first victory, Menasha High school gridders will oppose Clintonville under the lights at Butte des Morts field Friday night.

The Truckers probably will provide stiff opposition for the Bluejays as they also are seeking their first win.

However, Menasha has been defeated by two top teams of the conference, Kaukauna and Shawano, and also dropped a decision to Two Rivers. Clintonville has lost three games by a total of 11 points but those defeats were at the hands of the weaker teams in the conference.

Clintonville lost to Neenah 10 to 6, to New London 12 to 6 and to West DePere 14 to 13. The Truckers have scored four touchdowns, only one less than they managed all last season.

Clintonville has a big line and has made effective use of forward passes in its scoring this year. The Bluejays still are without a touchdown in conference games.

The Menasha team probably will be in top shape for the game Friday night. Roland O'Brien, left halfback, probably will be ready to go again after being injured in the Kaukauna game. He was used for a few plays in the Shawano game last week. Edward Humski, senior end, also was used for only a few plays against Shawano but should be ready this week.

Defensively the Bluejays probably are ready after the showing the line made in the second half against Shawano. However, the Jays will receive some drill on pass defense this week. They also will brush up on their forward pass attack.

Leaman reported that the visitors were from 224 cities in 29 states and Canada and France. Last year the visitors were from 209 cities in 25 states.

The cabin was open daily from June until Sept. 4 and on weekends until last week.

Mayor Named To Committee On Stamp Plan

Aldermen Express Approval of System At Special Meeting

Neenah—Mayor W. H. Jensen was delegated to represent Neenah on the county committee to negotiate with the federal government for approval of a county food stamp plan at a special council session Tuesday night at the city hall. The plan was explained by R. M. Heckner, Menasha supervisor on the county board and chairman of the social security committee of the common council.

The aldermen expressed approval of the plan but wanted to be certain that costs and benefits will be equally distributed. In addition to Mayor Jensen, the county committee which will consider the merits and demerits of the plan will include Neenah Mayor Edwin A. Kalfahs, Mayor George Oaks and two Oshkosh aldermen, and four members of the Winnebago county board, including J. F. Shea, chairman of the board.

Heckner, who attended the meeting at Oshkosh Monday at which the plan was explained by W. P. Oliver, senior program organizer stationed at the regional food stamp office at Milwaukee, pointed out that it is intended to secure more equitable distribution of surplus food products to those who need them as well as to benefit the merchant and the producer of the crops.

It was estimated that Winnebago county would benefit from $200,000 to $250,000 in additional business from the plan.

The plan is operated by the use of two kinds of food order stamps. These stamps are printed by the United States bureau of engraving and printing in 25-cent denominations and are bound in books of different values. The stamps are in two colors, orange and blue.

Revolving Fund

The local unit or political subdivision, in this case the county, sets up a revolving fund, the amount dependent upon normal requirements, for maintaining a stock of stamp books. The orange stamps are the only ones paid for by the local area but for each dollar of orange stamps the government gives 50 cents worth of blue stamps.

The stamps will be sold only to those who are certified as eligible and those probably will include persons on WPA, those receiving old age, blind, or mothers assistance, and those on direct relief. When the WPA worker receives his check he can purchase $3 worth of orange tickets and will receive $4 worth of blue tickets, giving him $12 in purchasing power. The orange stamps may be used for purchase of any type of food sold in any retail outlet, providing that outlet qualifies for acceptance of food stamps.

Blue stamps will buy only those foods that are declared in surplus production by the secretary of agriculture. However, those foods will be purchased by the dealer through his usual wholesale markets and he will be expected to take his normal profit. Neither the orange or blue stamps may be used for alcoholic beverages, tobacco or food to be consumed on the premises.

Mr. Heckner pointed out that adoption of the plan would provide additional nourishment and proper diet for the relief client, it would move surplus products and result in increased wages to the producer, and it would result in more business for local merchants.

Penalties for Chiseling

The plan is purely voluntary. Mr. Heckner estimated that Menasha would have about 240 certified as eligible to use stamps. He said that there are stringent penalties for any chiseling under the act. The county would have to set up a revolving fund for purchase of the stamps and the various communities would contribute according to the use made of the plan. Agencies would be established where the stamps could be purchased.

Another citizens committee will be named, which will include grocers and meat market men, who will arrange for the cooperation of the retail food outlets with the plan. The merchant takes the stamps and pastes them on cards and then sends

Large Crowd Expected at Military Ball

Jaces Report Tickets Moving Fast for Event In Honor of Guardsmen

Neenah—Advance ticket sales for the military farewell ball for Twin City units of the Wisconsin National Guard Saturday night at the S. A. Cook armory indicate that a large crowd will attend. It was reported at a meeting of the Neenah Junior Chamber of Commerce last night in the community room of the National Manufacturers bank building.

The Jaces are sponsoring the dance and proceeds will be contributed to the guard companies' mess fund. All guardsmen in uniform and their wives and friends will be guests of the Jaces.

Tickets have been distributed to all employees of industrial plants and offices in Neenah and Menasha. Peter Gehrke, general chairman, reported that patriotic decorations will be featured and a 9-piece orchestra will furnish the music. Refreshments will be served by members of the Jaces auxiliary. Dancing will be from 9 o'clock until 1.

Tickets have been placed on sale at Draheims, Barnetts' and the Island Drug store, Neenah, and Sonneberg's Pharmacy, Menasha.

Would Delay Purchase

The Jaces adopted a resolution requesting the Winnebago county board at its special session Friday to delay action on purchasing land for a county airport until after the fall election. The Jaces also opposed purchase if federal funds are not available to assist in establishing an airport for national defense purposes.

Howard Angermeyer, sports committee chairman, reported that a bowling league consisting of Jaces from chambers in Neenah, Menasha, Appleton, Oshkosh, Waupaca and Stevens Point will be formed and matches held each month at the various cities. Angermeyer is head of the circuit.

Harmon McCarthy, Neenah, gave a talk on diamonds, tracing the history of the gem. He told of some of the larger diamonds found and facts concerning their discovery and disposition. He explained how diamonds are cut.

$10 cards to the government. He is supposed to receive a check within 72 hours. No change is given to the holder of the stamps but he is given credit by the storekeeper for any amounts less than 25 cents.

Action taken by the county committee will be referred back to the Menasha council for approval, according to the resolution adopted last night. The council also authorized payment of expenses for Mayor Jensen in connection with his committee work.

Opposes Airport

Because many city officials will be at the League of Wisconsin Municipalities convention Friday, Alderman John Scanlon asked that as many Menasha businessmen as possible go to the special county board meeting at Oshkosh to protest expenditure of funds to expand the airport.

On motion of Paul Laemmrich, chairman of the street department, a department employee was suspended for 30 days because he was caught in a tavern during working hours. Laemmrich said that all employees had been warned two months ago. A second offense will result in loss of the job.

William DeBruin suggested that arrangements should be made to permit people without jobs to work off their property taxes through the street department. He said that city employees who apparently don't appreciate their jobs might be replaced by some of those who own their homes but have no employment and cannot get on WPA but who are willing to work.

EXAMINE SKETCHES—Director W. S. Van Dyke II and Jeanette MacDonald examine Nelson Eddy's sketches for a woman's head which he is modeling in clay, between scenes of "Bitter Sweet," their latest musical comedy.

By Jimmie Fidler

New York — Dear Staff: Everywhere I go in this city I hear wonderful reports about Joan Crawford. She's been living in New York since early summer, when she came here to take charge of her newly adopted daughter, Christine — as cute a baby, by the way, as ever I set eyes upon.

Joan's activities in behalf of Allied Relief, her donations to Red Cross, her special (private, not publicized) attention to numerous needy cases including the payment of more doctors' bills than you can count on the fingers of two hands — these and other fine stories have come to my ears.

Indeed, Miss Crawford has built a reputation in the minds of most New Yorkers that must, if she knows of it, gladden her heart. And certainly what she has done is of inestimable value to the film colony, of which the general public thinks far too little good.

Frankly, Joan's stay here has opened Broadway's eyes. For one thing, she hasn't been a nightly habitue of clubs and cafes. She has lived moderately. New York has discovered that she does not drink, that she is a very sane, ladylike person — a young woman of whom other American women may be justly proud.

Of course, all this is no secret to those who know her in the West. Her private charities and fine deeds are legend out there. Her reputation as a play-girl is long out-dated; it goes back to the days when she was a giddy youngster trying her best to attract attention in Hollywood. Since she attained stardom, she has changed so much that there isn't a finer, more respected woman in the entire film colony. I'm glad New York has had the chance to find that out for itself.

JIMMIE FIDLER.

Dear Boss: The above communique arrived so late that we've had no time to coin an adequate opening insult. And since we're in hearty accord with your appraisal of Joan Crawford's virtues, nothing's left but today's gossip harvest.

Today's real life drama concerns Granville Owen (actual surname Schofield), who plays the title role in "L'il Abner." With one exception, all members of Granville's family have scoffed at his acting ambitions, urging him to leave Hollywood and enter the San Francisco brokerage office of his well-to-do father. The exception is his mother, who, as a young girl, was herself restrained by parental objections from accepting a Broadway contract offered by Henry W. Savage. Today Owen learned that his mother will not be able to see his first big picture. Her sight, which has been failing for more than a year, is now too far gone.

Alice Faye, who's been taking lessons in sea(w)manship, is yacht-shopping. . . . Wot's this anent Warner Brothers proposing screen tests to tennis champ Bobby Riggs? . . . How-time-does-fly 'tine, she hasn't been a nightly habitue of clubs and cafes. She has

Fall Is Best Time to Kill Off Weeds, Magnus Says

This fall, from now until freeze-up time is open season for quack grass, Canada thistles, field bindweed and other farm weeds, according to County Agent J. F. Magnus.

"Whether it is cultivation or a chemical that is used, fall treatment is important for the kill," he says. "Perhaps more quack grass is destroyed by bringing the weeds to the surface in the fall where they can dry and eventually freeze out than in any other way."

George Briggs, extension agronomist at the college of agriculture recommends cultivating corn stubble as soon as stalks have been removed and grain stubble which has not been seeded down. These he would cultivate deeper than two inches at the first cultivation. If possible, the fields should be cultivated in the opposite direction the same day. Then at 7 to 10 day intervals the field should be worked in opposite directions, but at slightly greater depths at each successive cultivation. Use of harrow between cultivations often times breaks up many lumps, and helps expose and destroy many roots. This procedure should be continued, if possible, until freeze up, he advises.

Chemical control of quack grass, Briggs reports, is being practiced by many farmers on small areas as well as under fence rows, and late October is the best time for these applications. It is best, he finds, to use as much as two to two and one-half pounds of chlorate for each square rod for controlling quack grass under fence rows, but for quack grass in fields that are to be put in a cultivated crop in 1941, apply from one to one and one-fourth pounds per square rod.

Chemicals can be applied either wet or dry, but should be spread uniformly. Care in not permitting clothes to become saturated with chemical is always desirable because of serious consequences.

Briggs finds October to be an especially good month for applying chlorate to field bindweed, also known as creeping jenny. He recommends four pounds either wet or dry to each square rod.

only add Fall is best 211 4SS Canada thistles can be treated like field bindweed, except if only scattered plants are found, the chemical can be applied around each plant. For solid areas the same amount of chemical is used as with field bindweed. For large areas in cultivated fields, Briggs believes its practical to apply the necessary lime and fertilizer and seed alfalfa the next spring. This, he says, will control Canada thistles if one obtains a good stand and cuts it for hay only twice a year. In most cases chemicals are only recommended where the cultivation and the cropping practices are difficult, or where infestations are small. Directions for the application of chemicals can be obtained from the county agent's office.

Recently Briggs and County Agent Magnus put on six demonstrations as to methods of applying chemicals to kill creeping jenny, one of the most persistent of all weeds. The demonstrations were carried out on the following farms:—Henry Griesbach, 1 mile north of Greenville; Mrs. John Knutzen, Dale; Elwood Brewer, 1 mile southeast of New London; Milton Zuleger, 3 miles north of Black Creek; Ed Peotter, 2 miles west of Seymour, and Ed Sprangers, 2 miles north of Little Chute at the intersection of county trunk N and JJ.

Chemicals can be applied either wet or dry, but should be spread uniformly. Care in not permitting clothes to become saturated with

Brown Swiss Herd Is High Fat Producer

Cows in Testing Unit Produce Average of 32.5 Pounds in Month

A registered Brown Swiss herd owned by Alfred Techlin averaged 32.5 pounds of butterfat to lead production during September in the Outagamie County Dairy Herd Improvement association, No. 5, according to Merlin Wolf, fieldman.

A registered Holstein herd, owned by Mrs. E. Paltzer, averaged 22.8 pounds to place second. Third was a Holstein herd, owned by Paul Kroes, with an average of 29.9 pounds.

High individual was a Holstein in the Frank Bachellor herd. It produced 59.9 pounds of butterfat. A cow in the Techlin herd was second with 56.7 pounds. Third was a cow in the Walter Romanesko herd. It produced 54.8 pounds.

Following are the owners and number of cows producing 40 or more pounds of butterfat during the month: John Coenen 1, Paul Kroes 2, Chester Appleton 3, Walter Romanesko 4, Mike Mack 2, Maurice Powers 1, Robert Paltzer 4, Henry Smith 1, Bernard Mares 1, A. J. Lammer 1, Bert Zobel 1, Alfred Techlin 5, George Thyssen 1 and Henry Oudenhoven 3.

Red Clover Seed Crop in State Smaller This Year

A sharp decrease in red clover seed production is shown for Wisconsin this year, according to a crop reporting service bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus.

For the United States, red clover seed production decreased about 10 per cent compared with the production reported last year. With a much smaller acreage and a slight decrease in the yield per acre compared with last year, red clover seed production in Wisconsin is estimated at only 82,000 bushels compared with 134,000 bushels harvested last year. The acreage this year is estimated at 82,000 acres. The yield was a bushel per acre. In 1939, Wisconsin farmers saved 103,000 acres of red clover for seed.

The production of red clover seed in the United States this year is expected to be 1,552,000 bushels of thresher-run seed compared with 1,721,000 bushels harvested last year. Compared with last year's production, the amount of red clover seed harvested in 1940 is 10 per cent smaller but it is about 55 per cent larger than the 10-year average.

Reports show that the potential acreage of red clover for seed production this year was at a record level but because of too much rain in some sections and very hot, dry weather in other parts of the nation the setting of seed was poor to fair. Relatively low prices also affected the acreage left for seed. The acreage this year was only about 7 per cent larger than the one harvested last year.

While the production of red clover seed is smaller than last year, the carry-over was large and the total supply is larger than in 1939.

The Outagamie county special 4-H bull sale has been set tentatively for Saturday, Nov. 9, according to J. F. Magnus, county agricultural agent.

Bull calves to be offered at the auctions are, in nearly all cases, from dams with known dairy herd improvement association records of 300 pounds or more of butterfat a year.

State Turkey Crop Smaller This Year

Wisconsin's turkey crop this year is not quite as large as last year's, and the total number of turkeys raised in the United States is only slightly larger than the number raised in 1939, according to a crop reporting service bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus.

Approximately 335,000 turkeys were raised on Wisconsin farms this year compared with 342,000 raised last year. Turkey production in Wisconsin, while 2 per cent below that of last year, is about 5 per cent larger than the 10-year average.

A crop of about 33 million turkeys is reported for the United States this year. According to early fall reports the nation's turkey crop this year is only 1 per cent larger than shown in the estimates for the fall of 1939.
